

Teenager art classes start

Barbara Turney offers a summer art class for junior and senior high school students on Monday and Wednesday afternoons for four weeks beginning July 21. The instructions will be given in her Farmington home.

The artist, who has taught youth from kindergartners to teenagers in Farmington Community Center, said, "This is to add to and keep in touch with creative skills over the summer. The emphasis will be on the basics; composition, drawing, and developing a painting."

Students may use either oil or acrylics in the eight-session class.

Ms. Turney is a member of Farmington Artists Club and Palette and Brush, and for five years has been a co-owner of Garret Gallery and Studios in downtown Farmington.

Fee for the summer session is $25. She will take registrations and inquiries at 477-9556.

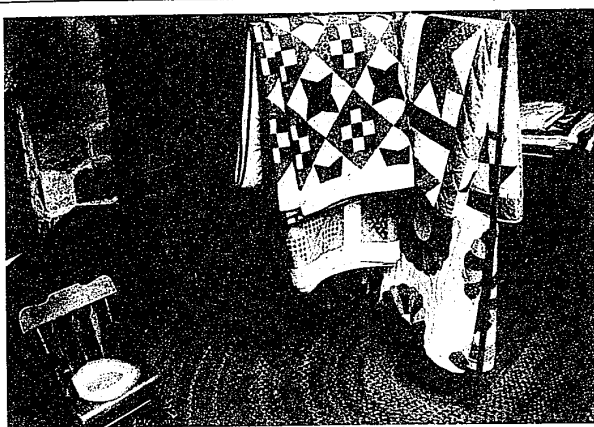

Breast cancer can be cured

Nearly one out of 11 American women develop breast cancer, but 85 percent of these cases can be cured or controlled if detected early by breast self-examination or regular check-ups. Questions concerning cancer will be taken by calling the Public Response Program of the Michigan Cancer Foundation at 465-9191.

100 Lutheran youth take religious survey

About 100 young people from Prince of Peace Lutheran Church will be out knocking on doors in several portions of Farmington Hills Saturday conducting a religious survey.

"Their purpose is to encourage all of us to a more active life in the church of our choice," said Rev. R.A. St. Pierre, of the church at 2800 New Market Road.

Up for sale

The quilts that were created in Jody Brock's charming farm house in Northville will be transferred to Farmington Community Center and go on sale during Farmington Community Center's Farmer's Market. The market is something new for the area that will run from 9 a.m. to noon for 13

Saturdays beginning Aug. 2 on the center grounds at 24705 Farmington Road. Farmers and backyard gardeners with home-grown surplus will bring fresh produce, eggs, honey, jelly, flowers and plants. (Staff photo by Randy Borst)
