Bookworm takes trophy

Behind the float and the bookworm that took the first place trophy for "best float" in Founders Festival Parade were three children's librarians and 30 second-to-eighth graders. "The library is especially proud to accept the first place trophy," said Denise Albrecht, children's librarian in Farmington Community Library who worked with Jill Locke and Deb Mason and a student assistant, David Keliher to put the winning float together. The children who rode on the float were dressed in historical or futuristic costumes, ranging from the Statue of Liberty to Dr. J, from Betsy Ross to Shirley Temple.

A bright green bookworm led the float. Eight youngsters walked inside the bookworm's cloth and hula-hoop body while another carried the paper mache head, fixed with a head rest. The bookworm's body was borrowed by Baldwin Public Library in Birmingham. The bookworm led a 40-foot trailer decorated with storybook characters. Children inside the trailer placed their own heads through the cut-out heads of the fictitious characters. The trailer was loaned to the library by Ellen H. Wood, Inc. George Robinson volunteered his time and know-how as driver.
