

Grey Herringbone becomes something special when it's Chaps by Ralph Lauren at Steve Petix

Ralph Lauren does the city suit with his kind of flair. He starts with a classic 2-button coat and adds his recognizable touches: buttonhole lapel, soft shoulder, flapped pockets and vest. In a selection of 100% wool at $315.00, this Ralph Lauren classic is very special indeed. As is our entire Fall Collection of Chaps by Ralph Lauren. We suggest you see it soon.

Calvin Klein's cashmere V-neck and cable knit pullover works well whether worn casually without a shirt or with the season's newest Oxford cloth shirt and cashmere blazer. From Saks Fifth Avenue.

Little things count

Fashion-wise, everyone agrees that men have finally begun to share the limelight with women. The male contingent now takes its cue from a growing number of influential designers whose creations range from the classic pin-stripe to cashmere and silk.

And, much like women, men have found that accessories are the most exciting way to recycle even the most basic of wardrobes.

It's the little things that count with the men today. Scarves have wound their way into fashion for more reasons than warmth. Argyle socks are showing their colors above penny loafers and the new laced suedes. Lapel pins are plainly in view. So is simple, tasteful jewelry. And pocket handkerchiefs that are a far cry from the white linen square are popping out of breast pockets.

Men have also begun to shoulder handsome leather bags just as women now tote attaches as a matter of routine. And, surprisingly enough, the buying is no longer a cliché. The 3 inch tie is the most predominant purchase of today's fashion conscious man.

NEW TRENDS are opening new doors to color, line, look and a whole new way of feeling. Gray, for example, comes alive when it is linked with yellow, blue and shrimp. A classic navy can easily be paired with green that ranges from pale to loden. Or mix navy with russet browns. Khaki comes to light accented by a new spectrum of colored crew-necks, shirts and belts.

The final touch, of course, is cologne. The best fragrance is brisk, modern and with a hint of citrus. A lot of men don't realize that cologne is not meant to be used as they would an after-shave product. Instead, cologne is designed for the pulse points. You know — at the wrists, behind the ear lobes, at the base of the throat.
