

Furniture artist displays work

An exhibit of furniture by one of America's premiere designers and craftsmen, Vladimir Kagan, will be held at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Oct. 9 to Nov. 7.

Kagan has each of his pieces handmade in his own facility by himself or one of his handful of craftsmen.

His pioneering concepts have often been adopted as standard practices within the furniture industry and the interior design profession. He is known not only as a furniture designer, but also as a sculptor, painter, master cabinetmaker, interior designer and architect.

The exhibit of Kagan furniture will open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday-

Friday in the LIT School of Architecture Gallery. The college is at 21000 W. 10 Mile Road in Southfield. The exhibit is open to the public at no charge. For further information, call the LIT School of Architecture at 355-0200.

Kagan was an early designer of furniture which served more than one purpose — multi-purpose furniture such as sofas with their own cantilevered end table, free standing headboards containing their own chest of drawers, night tables and illumination, and desks that are conference tables.

Included in the exhibit at LIT will be Kagan's women's executive desk with a special vanity and other engineering features especially designed for women; his ornate sofa grouping, perhaps the first of the "play pits" currently popular among furniture buyers; a walnut and aluminum geometric design chess table.

Also on display will be the patented glass-topped extension table in which the glass seems to float on a single pedestal, suspended in perfect balance; and his Tall System, a modern breakfast room which houses everything from television and hi-fi to refrigerator, bar, silver and china storage and illuminated virtuines; as well as over 40 other pieces.

Born in Germany, Kagan studied architecture at Columbia University. He went into his father's furniture factory to learn the furniture making trade and worked at "every bench" to become skilled at each facet of the craft.

His first major breakthrough as a designer came when he designed the designer's cocktail lounges for the original United Nations located at Lake Success in Long Island.
