

New 'Christmas Carol' presented at Music Hall

Charles Dickens' classic holiday fable "A Christmas Carol" will be presented by Music Hall in a new-to-Detroit stage musical version Dec. 26-30. This will be the second show in Music Hall's Family Series.

Special effects will provide the "haunting" sequences with larger-than-life depictions of the ghost of Marley and the familiar spirits of Christmas Past, Present and Future.

Picturesque English Christmas scenes, colorful and elegant Victorian costumes and dozens of traditional carols performed by 25 actors, singers and dancers are all part of this "Christmas Carol."

Show accents artist's work

A documentary by Detroit independent filmmaker Sue Marks, profiling internationally acclaimed fiber artist Gerhardt Knodel, will be shown on WTVS-Channel 56 at 10:45 p.m. Dec. 26.

"Gerhardt Knodel," a 15-minute film, features the artist who created the massive woven architectural sculpt-

Other works by Knodel also are shown. The artist illustrates how he created many of them, as well as his work on current projects.

BEING PRESENTED for the first time in Detroit, the Bill Fegan production is a five-year tradition in the western part of the United States. Fegan's productions have been presented in cities from St. Louis to Los Angeles.

Evening performances of "A Christmas Carol" are at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, and at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Matinees are at 11 a.m. Saturday, and at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Tickets can be obtained at the Music Hall box office or at any CTG ticket outlet. Telephone orders can be made by calling 963-7680 and using a Visa or MasterCard. Group discounts are available through Joan Heidt at 963-7622.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" is presented in a new version, a stage musical, opening Dec. 26 at Detroit's Music Hall Center.
