Workers move south

that while there is a movement out of the state, it hasn't begun to resemble an evacuation by the auto workers.
"There is a movement out of Michigan for sure but it's not a rush," said

"THERE ARE LOTS of opportunities for professionals in Detroit Industry."

Blue collar workers who walk into an employment agency and ask to be placed in jobs stimlar to the ones they were forced to leave will have some problems in becoming relocated, Dykstra said.

They've left because their former company's situation reflected that of the industry, 50 any job within that industry is difficult to find.

Some agencies will test clients to help them find another type of job for which they would be qualified.

On the whole, the job market has 'glowed down because the auto industry affects a lot of companies in Detroit," Dykstra said.

"Some companies which may be tied into the auto industry are changing in philosophy so they have their eggs in different baskets," he said.

Still, if a worker has the right job skills, employment is possible.

Still, pen for employees. Accountants, buyers and personal employees are also being placed.

Other skills still in demand include engineering with the exception of automotive engineering with the exception of automotive engineers and persons with administrative skills.

"SOMEONE with a good personality,

"SOMEONE with a good personality, who is ambitious and willing to work hard, is still given an oppportunity to work," Dykstra said.
