

Tarpinian-Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tarpinian of Farmington Hills announce the engagement of their daughter Jeanette Lynn to Richard Scott Smith, son of Mrs. Mary Smith of West Bloomfield and the late William R. Smith.

The bride-to-be and her fiancé are both graduates of Michigan State University.

An August wedding is planned in St. John Armenian Church, Southfield.

Book festival runs 4 days

Hillside Day School sponsors a book festival Monday through Thursday, Feb. 2-5, in the school at 32200 Middlefield Road.

New books written in both Hebrew and English will be on sale. Guest speakers, either involved in the writing or publishing of books, will be featured each day of the festival.

Festivities begin at 1 p.m. Monday with the presentation of a special "Am

Chorus seeks director and accompanist

The Livonia Suburban Choral is looking for a new director and a new accompanist. Members have been without either a director or an accompanist since last fall, "left kind of hanging in limbo but determined to stay together," said Lorraine Pyle speaking for the group.

The chorus is under the sponsorship of Livonia Parks and Recreation Department, which budgets money for each of these positions, but has been unable to fill the positions for the past several months.

The chorus meets once a week, at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays in Clarenceville High School, and possesses, Ms. Pyle said, "an inordinate good balance of voices."

Ms. Pyle will take inquiries by calling her at 493-1748.

Ha Sefer" award to Joan Blois. Ms. Blois, a 1980 Newberry Award winner, will be on hand to receive the award which honors her as the author of "A Gathering of Days."

Gladie Adler, wife of the late Rabbi Morris Adler, is the featured author for Tuesday. She will discuss her books, as well as her experiences in compiling her husband's works for "May I Have a Word With You."

Following her talk at 1 p.m., she will conduct a special question-and-answer period called "Ask the Rebbitzin."

The Wednesday and Thursday sessions will be devoted to the production of books.

On Wednesday, Alice Nigogkacian, production manager of Wayne State University Press, will discuss "Creating and Producing Books." She will show galleries and examples of each step taken in the production of books.

Her 1 p.m. appearance will be geared for children in lower elementary school grades. A second appearance for older children and guests will follow.

Admission to the book festival is free.

Enrichment courses offered by Nazarenes

First Church of the Nazarene, newly moved to Farmington Hills, is offering life enrichment courses to the public. The four courses begin in February in conjunction with the dedication of the church building on Haggerty Road.

The first four classes are the beginning of what is expected to be an ongoing program of adult education.

A four-week class to aid in retirement planning is called "Make Your Future Now." It begins Tuesday evening Feb. 3. The instructor is Dr. Don Starr of Plymouth.

A class to help families will be taught by Dr. Glenn Chaffee, a licensed psychologist and marriage counselor in private practice in Livonia and Farmington Hills. "Marriage: Trials, Tragedies and Triumphs" will run four weeks, beginning Wednesday evening, Feb. 4.

A six-week basic art class entitled "The Basics of Still Life" is offered. The class will be taught by the pastor of the church, Rev. James Conner, who studied art at University of Tennessee and worked for several years as a commercial artist. The class begins Thursday evening, Feb. 5.

A daytime course for women, "Where is God in the Crisis of Life?" is a Bible-based study taught by Carolyn Lunn, a nationally known speaker and teacher. Mrs. Lunn lives in Farmington Hills. Babysitting is available for this class only, Tuesday mornings, beginning Feb. 3.

Those who wish to participate in any of the classes are invited to call the church office, 348-7600. The enrollment for some classes is limited. There is a $5 registration fee.

"We want people who live around us to feel free to take part in these classes," Rev. Conner said.

The new home for First Church of the Nazarene is a white triangular structure, clearly visible from I-275, just northwest of Eight Mile Road.

Camp Fire candy on sale

Camp Fire Girls in Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and Livingston counties are revving up now for their annual sale of candy that will run from Feb. 21-March 9.

Goal for the Detroit Area Council of Camp Fire Girls is $50,000 to be raised from Cadbury candy bars. Purchasers have two choices, Cadbury milk chocolate with crisp rice or Cadbury Carmello.

Both are priced at $1 a bar.

The sale is the single largest fundraising effort for the 4,000 youngsters in the four counties which provides 38 percent of each council's yearly operating budget, and also helps maintain Camp Wathana.

Camp Wathana is a 380-resident facility located near Holly open all year for a variety of camping experiences for non-members as well as Camp Fire members.

A call to the Detroit council, 833-2670, will tell purchasers the nearest location to buy Camp Fire candy.

Staff wives plan affair to remember

Wives of Henry Ford Hospital staff have named their annual dinner dance for the year An Affair to Remember. Debbie Eichenhorn (left) from Lathrup Village, Sandy Garcia of Farmington Hills, Kitty Borch of Bloomfield Township, Jane High of Troy and Gayle Haeger of Grosse Ile, have chosen a

Hawaiian theme for the evening of Saturday, May 16. Detroit's Roostertail will be decorated as a tropical island; guests will see a Hawaiian show and dine from a Hawaiian menu. Inquiries will be taken by Mrs. Garcia at 477-3724. (Staff photo by Randy Bost)
