Margaret Miller

Again we announce . . .

"You're not officially engaged until your announcement has been in this paper," is an adage we've bandied about in our office. Usually the occasion for quoting it comes when a bride-to-be or her mother calls to find out just when her own VIS (Very Important Story) is going to appear in print.

But here I am sitting for three months on our own second such announcement. The ring has been in place on the third finger, left hand of the third daughter of the Miller clan since before Thanksgiving. The holdup has been lack of a suitable picture.

I've filled a lot of this space over the years reporting on the young woman who wears the ring. She's the one who once went to a come-as-your-mother party and won a prize and the one who won a big junior high spelling bee and is a real champion punster.

She twirled a baton and played for soloists and appeared in dramas while in high school. She gave piano lessons and went off to university to give us a chance to cheer for the green and white.

SHE IS ALSO one of her dad's favorite photo subjects, but still we never managed to get organized for a suitable picture for publication. And she is indeed engaged, even without benefit of the official sanction that appears below.

Besides her diamond and emerald ring, she and the young man who will be our second son-in-law have a number of proofs. A date on a church calendar, a bridal registry listing, receipts from a photographer and an invitation printer.

AND THEY ARE BUSY with plans not only for the wedding but also for the marriage. Both want to continue study after she graduates in June and they are waiting to hear where they will be doing it.

Finally she solved the all-important picture question by deciding to go with the one that appeared in her high school yearbook. "I guess people who know me will recognize it," she noted in giving the green light.

I'm sure people will, and most will be not too surprised about the high school friendship that is leading to the altar. So once again I add a mother's very best wishes before getting too deeply into another round of bridal sewing. They are wishes loaded with joy and hope and a great deal of love.

Miller-Williams

Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Miller of Novi, formerly of Farmington, announce the engagement of their daughter Katherine Irene to Paul Harrison Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Williams of Hayden Street, Farmington.

The bride-elect is a 1977 graduate of Farmington High School and will graduate from Michigan State University in June with a degree in communications. Her fiancé graduated in 1976 from Farmington High and in 1980 from Hope College. He is a teaching assistant and graduate student in the mathematics department of MSU.

They plan to be married Aug. 1 in Newburg United Methodist Church of Livonia.

Bachmann-Nelson

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Bachmann of Farmington Hills announce the engagement of their daughter Nancy Lynn to Robert Kenneth Nelson, son of Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Nelson of Alpena.

The bride-to-be graduated from University of Michigan and is employed by School of Music, University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Her fiancé holds a master of arts in mathematics from Cornell University and is vice president of computer operations for Air-flow Sciences in Plymouth.

A May wedding is planned in First Church of God, Farmington Hills.

Saad-Hidinger

Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Saad of Farmington Hills announce the engagement of their daughter Kathleen Marie to Gregory Eugene Hidinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Hidinger of Farmington Hills.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Harrison High School and Oakland Community College, now employed as office manager for a Farmington Hills doctor.

Her fiancé, a graduate of Harrison High School, is employed as a carpenter for Elkin & Co. A June wedding is planned.

Hypnotism: a helping technique

"And 68 percent of overcasters make modifications in their diet."

Anxiety problems take longer, but he gets 65 to 85 percent success here, he said.

"HYPNOSIS can be very helpful for phobias. Approximately 30 million people suffer from severe phobias such as fear of heights or fear of enclosed places.

"Some people who are agoraphobics won't leave their homes."

In addition to treating phobias and modifying lifestyles, hypnotism can be useful for general health. Seventy percent of all physical illness has a psychological basis, he said.

"This is true for heart disease, asthma, ulcer and even cancer."
