

College financing seminar at Madonna

Parents and students concerned with financing a private college education will benefit from a special "College Information Day," planned at Madonna College, on Sunday, March 29 at 1 p.m.

A lecture on financial aid will highlight the afternoon affair, with special information on tuition grants exclusively available to students attending private Michigan colleges.

Madonna College financial aid director, Chris Ziegler, will explain the Michigan Differential and Tuition Grant Programs, as well as the theory and application procedures involved in obtaining state and federal aid.

Men and women interested in college careers can explore the approximately 50 career-oriented programs offered at the liberal arts college. Programs include computer systems, nursing, business administration, criminal justice, psychology, fashion merchandising and occupational safety-health and fire science, among many others.

Madonna College is the only college in the state to award undergraduate degrees in sign language studies interpreting and gerontology (the study of aging). The College also provides interpreting and notetaking services to hearing impaired and deaf students free of charge.

Instructors and counselors will be on hand to discuss the wide variety of career choices at Madonna College and campus tours will be available throughout the afternoon.

For more information, contact the Admissions Office at 591-5052 or 591-5000. Madonna College is located at Schoolcraft (I-96) and Levan in Livonia.

Judge holds suspects

ing an unloaded gun, a toy gun, or even a concealed finger, said the prosecutor. By his participation in the scheme to steal Reil's car, Mandelbaum said, McMillion showed wanton and reckless disregard for Reil's life — one criteria for premeditated murder.

Crosby's attorney, Gary Ladue, asked Hand for the opportunity to cross-examine the prosecution's chief witness, Adrian Fleming, 18, of Detroit. The judge denied the motion without prejudice, explaining the opportunity to cross-examine Ms. Fleming would be available in circuit court.

Attorney Ladue said Ms. Fleming "had reason to lie" to protect McMillion because she is his girlfriend.

BOTH DEFENSE attorneys indicated they would appeal the decision by Judge Hand to order the co-defendants held without bond for trial. Waterman and Ladue said the circuit judge sent the case back to district court only to resolve the problem of charging both men on unconstitutional, automatic first-degree murder charges.

Judge Hand disagreed outside the courtroom. Because the case was sent back to district court, both men will have to be rearraigned in circuit court on new information, said Judge Hand, "and the 180-day period starts from their second arraignment."

Webster was unavailable for comment on Hand's action to order both men jailed without bond.

Headlee talks

"After all, those of us who work in private sector don't just work in Michigan. We live here, too. We raise and educate our children here. We drink the same water and breathe the same air and want to protect our environment the same as everyone else."

"But we recognize that to solve our problems we must act like mature adults and first recognize our problems are real."
