Parking for practice and tournament rounds of the Senior Open, as in previous tournaments at Oakland Hills, will be on the club's North Course, north of Maple (15 Mile) Road.

Park on North Course

You won't find many surprises in the parking arrangement at the U.S. Senior Open Championship at Oakland Hills.

The bulk of the cars will be parked, as always, on the North Course of the Oakland Hills Country Club grounds.

Championship play is on the famed South Course.

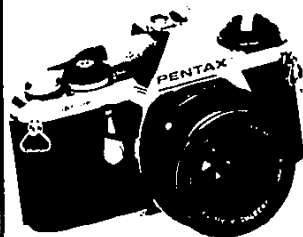

Parking at the North Course, across the street from tournament action, is free. Parking costs are included in the $8 charge for practice rounds (July 6, 7 and 8) and in the $12 charge for the tournament play (July 9, 10, 11 and 12).

There is room for 14,000 cars on the course, although only about 10,000 cars used the facility each day during the 1979 PGA.

U.S. Senior Open officials expect only 3,000-5,000 cars each day for this year's event, however, hoping to keep parking problems to a minimum.

It rained during the weeks of both the 1972 and 1979 PGA events at Oakland Hills when the North Course was used for parking. The rain caused many ruts in the North Course, and it took several weeks to get it back into playable condition.
