On the garden tour

The Moore Garden, with a terraced landscaped hill and wooden stairs that lead to charming rest areas, is one of the stops on Farmington Garden Club's Garden Tour that runs 1-5 p.m. July 18. Peg Moore (at right) gets the garden ready for company with her daughter Barb Denton, and her grandchildren 4-year-old Chad and 18-month-old Adam. The Moore garden spot is one of seven that will be open for touring in the event that is one celebration of the club's 50th anniversary. Tickets at $3 each, which include maps and a description of the seven gardens, are available by calling Sue Phillips at 851-4560.

He knows his trolleys

"I'm amazed at the resurgence of interest," he said with a broad smile. He would like to see Detroit use more of it and thinks Woodward Avenue would be an ideal place for the system. "If it would be successful anywhere, it would be on Woodward. That was the line that was so successful" in the heyday of the trolleys, Radway said.

"I THINK COLEMAN Young is right in developing a light rail." But what Radway would like to see is a subway from downtown Detroit to Vernor Hwy., surface to Grand Boulevard, then run through Highland Park, to the zoo and then link up with I-696.

Thirty-eight years at Michigan Bell will give the 53-year-old Radway an opportunity to retire at a relatively early age. One of the things he wouldn't mind doing during his retirement is an advisory post on a group like SEMTA. His knowledge of the past could avoid costly mistakes in the future, he feels.

Sawyer heads Oakland Bar

Thomas G. Sawyer, a Detroit native who lives in Troy, was elected president of the 2,300-member Oakland County Bar Association last week. A 1960 University of Michigan Law School graduate, Sawyer, 45, practices with the firm of Hutson, Sawyer, Schenden and Chapman in Troy. The firm was city attorney of Troy from 1988 to 1978.

Sawyer, past president of the county Legal Aid Society and the Troy Chamber of Commerce, has been a county Bar Association director since 1975.

Other new officers are president-elect Hanley Gurwin, treasurer Sheldon Larky and secretary Sander Gelman.
