Saturday is Farmers' Market Day

In summer the accent is on fresh foods and light dishes with a variety of contrasts and pure, natural flavors. Farmington Community Center's Parmers' Market, open on Saturdays in August and September, offers a de-lightful array of choices in these areas. Phylis Welch, a long-time volunteer for the center and chairwoman of the market, said, "Many of our farmers are returning this year, and produce is pentitil and fresh. "Our new setup, with vendors selling from stalls in the southwest area of the center parking lot, alws for ample using and pupping." Selvy, who farm f3 acres in Temperance, are popular sellers returning to the market.

Wesley, formerly an engineer, now devotes all his efforts to farming and produces a bountiful supply of vegeta-bles to markets in the metropolitan ness to markets in the interlopointan area. Twenty-siz acres of Wesley's farm are on sandy soil and provide him with an area to grow produce relatively free from mildew and fungus problems. His tomatoes and potatoes, well-formed and developed, show how suc-cessful this Ohio-Michigan border farm has been.

has been. Lewis Messina, an agent for Wiscon-zeris Messina, an agent for Wiscon-tanti sin cheddar cheese, sail, "I'm delighted with the response of shoppers to our cheeses and sausage and plan to bring some Italian cheese to the market in weeks to come." Ms. Clement also sells her own green pepper jelly, a southern condi-ment.

Messina said that the Wisconsin cheddar is aged for 14 months and is rindless. The smoked summer sausage is a blend of veal and pork and special-ly packed by an independent packer.

ANOTHER NEWCOMER to the market is Wendy Clement of Farming-ton Hills. Ms. Clement sells an Italian bread called Lancaino Stromboli, named af-ter a friend who shared the recipe with her. It is made from pepperoni and mo-zarella, rolled up jelly-roll style, and may be served as an entree with salad or used as an hors d'oeuvre. Ms. Clement also sells her own

The market will continue on Satur-days throughout September with a va-riety of items for sale each week be-cause not all the sellers are there every Saturday

Stalls may be rented on a weekly or monthly basis so new items will be available each Saturday. Rain or shine, the market will remain open from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

a.m. to 1 p.m. Volunteers will be on hand to man the center's booth, selling cookbooks, stationery and refreshments. The resale shop on the second floor of the center will be open from 9 a.m. to noon during market days. The center is located at 24705 Farm-ington Road, north of 10 Mile Road.
