

Air Force duo honored for service to country

Ray Heldenbrand, general chairman of the 1982 Farmington-Farmington Hills Memorial Day Parade, has announced the two senior airmen selected to receive citations for outstanding service to their Air Force Units in 1982.

Senior Airman Jeffery Cram is the outstanding airman representing the regular service, and Senior Airman Cheryl Avary is the outstanding airman representing the reserve components.

Avary is an intelligence operations specialist with the 107th Tactical Fighter Squadron of the Michigan Air National Guard. Born in Cleveland, she moved to Farmington Hills with her family in 1970. A 1976 graduate of North Farmington High School, she went on to acquire an associate's degree from Oakland Community College and now is pursuing a degree in elementary teaching at Eastern Michigan.

Avary enlisted in the Michigan Air National Guard, which sponsored her training program. At the basic training school at Lackland AFB, Texas, she trained with members of the regular Air Force. Her unit was cited for special achievement. After graduation from basic in March 1981 she went directly to Lowry AFB, Denver, for training as an intelligence operations specialist. She next completed the student leadership school at Lowry AFB. Later that year her tactical unit was on active duty in Italy. She continues to be a resident of Farmington Hills, and works in retailing and in the school year commutes to Eastern Michigan for her college studies.

Jeffery Cram

GRAM is an air traffic controller at Selfridge Air Force Base in Mt. Clemens. He graduated from Forest Park High School in Crystal Falls in 1976. In 1979, he joined the Air Force in Marquette.

An honor graduate in basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas, he was selected to go to air traffic control school at Keeler AFB in Mississippi. Again completing the course in minimum time and with honors, he was assigned to Selfridge AFB for facility rating, which he accomplished in seven months. The Selfridge Approach Control is responsible for the flow of air traffic in the tri-county area northeast of Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

These two senior airmen will receive a fly-over of military aircraft during the parade.

At least five bands and other musical organizations are participating in the parade. Many service groups, both civilian and military related will march. Local and state dignitaries have responded and indicate they will be marching. Any individuals or groups that would like to participate should contact Northwest Post 190 at 478-9117 or the general chairman, Ray Heldenbrand, 464-3424 for details.

Memorial Award trophies will be presented to outstanding units participating in the parade. Several categories of awards will give all participants an opportunity for recognition.
