Willing on OCC ballot

Barbara Jane Willing's name will be on the June 14 ballot of Oakland Community College after all. Circuit Judge John N. O'Brien ordered OCC Monday to place her name on the ballot of a four-year vacancy on the board of trustees. Four other people are seeking the post vacated by Richard Pappas, who resigned to move to Jackson.

"The judge found that only the voters would be harmed by not putting her name on the ballot," said Willing's attorney, John G. Makris of Madison Heights. "The wishes of the voters who signed her petitions will be honored."

WILLING, a legal secretary from Royal Oak and former OCC board member, had filed 51 petition signatures, one over the bare minimum of 50, by the April 27 deadline. College officials, however, disqualified 11 signatures and ruled her off the ballot.

Monday morning's court session, said Makris, was devoted to verifying that five signers were in fact registered voters. Willing charged OCC had used telephone checks of address lists rather than voter registration lists to check her signatures.

The afternoon session revolved around the question of six signatures being dated prior to April 22, when Pappas submitted his written resignation. On the advice of county elections officials, OCC invalidated those, a college spokesman said.

"Even though the resignation was dated April 22," said Makris, "the judge found no law which said signatures must be obtained subsequent to the resignation."

OTHER CANDIDATES seeking the four-year term are Edward H. Pappas (Richard's brother), Ilene V. Komer and Richard N. Corey, all of Farmington Hills, and Helen B. Cost of Royal Oak.

In addition, Corey is running for the board in Farmington School District. A county official quoted the state elections office as saying Corey can run in both contests and, if elected, serve in both offices.

Seeking six-year terms on the OCC board are incumbents Earl Anderson of Madison Heights and Suzanne K. Reynolds of West Bloomfield Township, along with William Condon of Clarkston, Adam S. Karlian of Birmingham and Antonia Sanchez-Murphy of Pontiac.

Seeking a two-term term are William R. Sinischo of Pleasant Ridge and Elizabeth N. Hawthorne of Birmingham.

Youths looking for summer jobs

Oakland County youths are nearly out of school and looking for summer jobs. Oakland Intermediate School District and Michigan Bell Telephone Co. have joined forces to promote a phone-a-lition.

They will contact more than 14,000 employees to obtain summer jobs for high school youth. Last year, the county found 1,070 jobs for high schoolers. Information on job openings is available through Oakland County school districts, job placement agencies and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

People interested in hiring a youth for a summer job can call the Oakland Schools at 858-2151.

Robotics meet at OU

Seventy-five representatives from industry, government and colleges will participate in a two-day conference on robotics at Oakland University.

The May 24-25 research conference in Meadow Brook Hall is entitled "Robotics: The Next Decade."

Participants will focus on future developments for robotics in vision and sense, control, intelligence and manufacturing systems.

Panel discussions with area industry and university representatives will follow the keynote address in each session.

Special reports will be made on robotics research from the perspectives of the military and industry.

The conference is underwritten by the OU Research Committee, the OU School of Engineering and Meadow Brook Hall.
