Candidate eyes state senate seat

Alan Feuer of Southfield, former executive director of Common Cause of Michigan, announced his candidacy Tuesday for the Michigan State Senate seat in the 15th District. He will run as a Democrat for the seat being vacated by Sen. Doug Ross, D-Southfield, who is running for Congress.

The district is composed of 12 communities: Southfield, Lathrup Village, Farmington Hills, Farmington, Oak Park, Ferndale, Huntington Woods, Royal Oak Township, Novi, Novi Township, Wixom and Northville.

Feuer (pronounced Foyer), 29, led Common Cause in its fight for the Michigan Open Meetings Act and directed Common Cause efforts that led to passage of the Michigan Campaign Finance Reform Act.

"The Michigan Legislature has raised taxes," Feuer said, "but while the state has gotten more money, the Legislature hasn't provided more sense."

"A Legislature that funds a stadium while shortchanging schools has not done its job. A Legislature that builds new highways when it can't repair old ones has not made sense of the current crisis," he said.
