explore other sources of funding, which could include funding from the private sector and possible minimal increases in the college's tuition, which is one of the lowest in the State.

3. "Cutbacks in governmental funding, increases in the cost of education and changes in our economy and economic base present the greatest challenges for community colleges today.
The college must strive to meet these challenges by providing quality educational programs with meet the needs and interests of the community and fall within the budget of the college."

1. "A trustee participates in formulating policy and is a communication link to the community. The trustee is an advocate for OCC and Oakland County. She must communicate with funding sources (e.g., the state) to articulate the contributions of OCC to the region and to the state and the needs of the college which funding source can belp to meet.

2. "The college must be able to examine systematically conditions which impact the college from both the short-term and long-to-perspectives. It should retain a vigorous and energetic faculty and staff which offers flexibility in program planning; and an admin-istrative structure which is able to be istrative structure which is able to be responsive to new program demands made on the college, while selectively modifying or eliminating programs and services. The college can continue offering needed and effective programs and services by reassinging funds from low demand to high demand areas.

3. "OCC is a major factor in the economic vitality of Oakland County. The relationships established between the college and employers of OCC students shuld be a high priority for the institution as it plans. Retraining of dislocated workers and providing social and cultural resources for the community are part of the college's mission

WILLIAM R. SINISCHO, 35 Norwich WILLIAM R. SINISCHO, 35 Norwich Rond, Pleasan Ridge. 51 years old. Employed as senior account executive for North American Steel Corp., Melvindale. Attended Concordia College, Milwaukee, until 1949, and complete, General Reputerments for BA degree at Valparaiso University during 1952. Married and attends St. Paul Lutheran Church, Royal Oak.

1. "My role as trustee is to evaluate administrative polices in a concurrent basis and aid in implementing both tactical and strategic planning that should be aimed toward ever improving the college's value to the community.

2. "In my opinion, the trustee are not esponsible for setting budgetary priorities. Such action is the adminsitrator's ities. Such action is the administrator's charge, and trustee may only review the feasibility of the administrator's priority system. Theoretically, the community demands appropriate priorities that must be reflected by administrative action.

nunistrative action.

3. "All indicators reflect that the most difficient tack besetting the college in the next five years will be its ability to compete with other institutions in its ability to attract students and still maintain an extensive curriculum. In the event Michigan's economy reamins depressed, financing, whether from direct millage or general funding, will become particularily difficult and may require consolidation of satellites or a diminished curriculum."
