

Farmington turns out to honor its best and brightest

Something special

Showing everyone what talent is all about at this year's Miss Farmington pageant was Sandra Oswald (right), who dazzled the audience with her flute solo. Besides winning the talent competition, she took second spot for the year. Vera Holdenberg (left), a former Farmington High School homecoming queen, performed a modern dance to "Red Light" from the motion picture "Fame."

Lisa Varty, a 1982 Farmington High grad, did a jazz routine to Hall and Oates' "You Make My Dreams Come True."

Roxanne D'Ascenzo impressed the judges and the audience with her jazz dance rendition of "The Last Blues Song" so much so that she took the top spot and became the 1982 Miss Farmington.

It was one more time for Kelly Garver, last year's Miss Farmington, as she returned to charm everyone with her talent.

Jana Dealey entertained the crowd with her vocal rendition of a medley from the motion picture "Fame." The 17-year-old was born in Texas and lived in North Carolina and New York before moving to Farmington.

A charming smile and talent for cloth design put Pamela McCann in fine form on competition evening. Her efforts won her second runner-up honors. A 1981 North Farmington grad, she is attending the University of Michigan where she is studying English and pre-law.
