Pageant directors look for 'Michigan Beauty'

The directors of Michigan Beauty Pageant are looking for a Michigan beauty. Any woman over the age of 18 can enter the competition which is based on the feeling that beauty is ageless. There is no maximum age limit and no marital restriction.

The pageant is set up by its organizers as a contest whose winner could be a grandmother, a mother of five or a college freshman. Contestants are judged on their beauty, poise, figure and personality.

Sandra Melouché Garbutt is the executive director of the pageant, assisted by her husband, Robert. She is a former beauty queen who has directed several beauty pageants in the last 10 years and a professional model.

There is no talent competition in the pageant. Judges will know only the entrant's first name and place of residence; not her age, marital status or occupation.

Entry forms are available by calling 227-5570 before Oct. 28. A $200 entry fee must accompany the completed and signed application form in order to become a contestant in the Nov. 20 pageant in Flint. It will be staged in the James H. Whiting Auditorium in Flint's new cultural center.
