

Henry Ford Arts and Crafts sale

One visit to Henry Ford Hospital's West Bloomfield Center Arts and Crafts Sale won't be enough this year. Holiday shoppers who want to see the full range of handmade items should plan one visit Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 15 and 16, and another Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 17 and 18, when a second shift of artisans displays their wares.

The annual sale, whose profits this year will go in part to West Bloomfield Youth Assistance, runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Thursday.

"We juried the work of all the artisans who applied, and we found we would have more high-quality items than space to display them in," said Jan York, R.N., of Milford, who is sale chairwoman.

"Rather than turn away so many beautiful items, we took a new approach. But we made sure there was just as good a selection during each two-day period as there has been in the past."

A BAKE sale by the center's employee activities committee also is scheduled for the first two days of the sale. Profits are earmarked for the purchase of an orthotron machine for use in physical therapy.

As an added attraction, members of the Mature Mingle's senior citizen quilting group will display and raffie off their 1982 project—a quilt in the original "log cabin" design done in earth tones of beige and brown.

Those who covet the quilt as a bed-cover or wall hanging may purchase raffie tickets for $1 each. Proceeds go to the Mature Mingle's special fund. Mature Mingle's homebound meals program received part of the arts and crafts sale profits last year.

Among new items for sale this year are stained glass, photography, polished wood clocks and tables, and dolls in native Vietnamese dress fashioned by a Vietnamese refugee now living in Michigan.

CRAFT SELECTIONS from artisans who are the center's closest neighbors include: holiday wreaths and dried flower arrangements from the Bloomfield West Garden Club; wreaths, silk flowers and ceramic ornaments by Gabrielle Griffin of Farmington Hills; stoneware and porcelain items from The Merry Potter (Mary Derrick) and fabric toys and clothing for babies and tots by Diane Wilson and Mindy Ashbaugh of Walled Lake; and authentic American Indian jewelry by Henry Blitzer of Orchard Lake.

The sale generated more than $10,000 in sales the first two years it was held, with artisans donating 10 percent to the center, York said.

"We know how direct the services of West Bloomfield Youth Assistance are, and we know that whatever we can donate to the group will be put to good use."

Cunningham sells store to druggists

The last remaining Cunningham Drug Store was sold Nov. 12. The Farmington store was purchased by two men who plan to open this week under the name Cambridge Pharmacy.

The two buyers are Robert Kelly and Martin Zwiesler, according to Seymour Serling, a partner of M.E. Arden Real Estate which owns the Farmington Plaza Shopping Center.

Serling said all merchants of the shopping center will benefit by the change in ownership.

The new owners have applied for a transfer in the beer and wine and liquor license which should take some time but Serling said they expect to open for pharmacy business this week.

"I can assure you this will be a bigger drug store, a real credit to the community," Serling said. "I'll be more intimate than a chain operation with changing personnel every week."
