

Hectic holidays don't have to frazzle your nerves and ruin your looks. An easy-care hairstyle, good makeup and prior planning can help make the holidays more enjoyable.

When choosing shoes, comfort is as important as style — parties often mean a lot of standing. Take the time to assemble your clothes a day or so before the evening. You'll save time when you're ready to go.

Though the invitations may pour in, don't over-schedule during the holiday season. A day of shopping followed by a night of partying can dim the brightest holiday face. When you're doing the entertaining keep everything as simple as possible.

Opt for a buffet instead of a sit-down dinner, an open-house where guests come and go rather than a huge party where they all descend en masse. And do allow time for relaxation sometime before the last ornament has been packed away for another year.
