

Rose Bowl not all thorns for reserve quarterback

By Brad Emmons
staff writer

A brief phone conversation with Dave Hall's mother summed up the Rose Bowl.

"He's gone through quite an experience," said Marsha.

A back-up quarterback is seen, but seldom heard. At Michigan, Hall usually stands on the sidelines next to Bo Schembechler, the head coach.

"I'm listening to the plays being called and that helps me pay attention better," said the Livonia Stevenson grad. "It keeps me in the game."

With six minutes to go in the first half, starter Steve Smith was crushed on an option run and had to leave the game with a separated shoulder in Michigan's battle with UCLA.

That was Hall's cue. He was going to play substantially as a Maize and Blue for the first time in his three-year career.

Hall didn't have time to think where he was at although it was the biggest game of the season. He had to get the club moving and help erase the deficit on the scoreboard.

"I WAS NERVOUS the first couple of plays," Hall admitted. "But I was pretty much involved in what I was doing."

"It would have been easier, though, if we would have been up 10-0 (UCLA won the game 24-14)."

Hall, who threw just 14 passes coming into the game, said the Bruins' defense played it straight up.

"UCLA didn't really blitz at all," Hall said. "Basically, their defense was to stop the run, but they usually sent more backs in on second and third downs."

"I just wished they would have blitzed more because that would have given us one-and-one coverage with Anthony Carter (Michigan's All-American wide receiver)."

Hall, tentative at first, grew more confident as the game wore on.

He threw a pair of fourth down touchdown passes in the second half and completed 13 of 24 tosses on the day for 155 yards.

One pass, however, he'd like to have back. It was Blanchard Montgomery's 11-yard interception return for a TD in the fourth quarter.

I shouldn't have thrown it.
"It was a new play we tried."

CONSIDERING the circumstances, Hall's performance was applauded.

"Bo said he was pleased with the way I played and kept my poise," said Hall. "And Rich Hewlett (ex-Michigan quarterback and now a safety) told me I did well and congratulated me. He encouraged me on the sidelines."

Just like he handled his job on the field, Hall was a poised performer despite all the sudden media attention.

"It was kind of strange," Hall said of the media onslaught following the game. "I was just glad I could play."

"I think it will help me a lot for next year. I just wish the game would have been longer. I felt better and better as the game went along."

Hall, who returned Monday night with his teammates from California, doesn't get much rest. He started classes yesterday along with track practice.

"I'll be working on the decathlon," said the junior economics major. "It will take some months to get back in that type of shape."

"I'll take a couple of weeks off and then begin throwing every day."

HALL, who was redshirted last year and has two years of eligibility left, will not rejoin the Michigan basketball team.

"It was just too much on my knees," he said. "I developed tendonitis."

Hall will compete in the indoor track season followed by spring football practice.

And he'll go into spring practice this year knowing No. 7 can do the job when called upon.

"Dave did a very respectable job, I thought, under those tremendous, nervous conditions," said his former high school coach, Jack Reardon. "We're all very proud of him."

Hansen nominated for national golf coaching award

Jerry Hansen of Detroit Country Day School has been nominated by the Michigan Interscholastic Golf Coaches Association as the national golf coach of the year.

Michigan High School Coaches Association Executive Vice President Bob James recently informed Hansen of his nomination for this prestigious national award. The award, James said, "is not based on record alone, but is largely determined by long-term accomplishments."

An Assistant Headmaster at Country Day, Hansen has coached golf at the Bloomfield Hills school for the past eight years. During that time, his teams have won four state championships (1975, 1977, 1979 and 1980), one state runner-up trophy (1981), four regional titles and 78 dual meets.

Hansen, who began his tenure at CDD as the football coach, has been a member of the school's faculty for 17 years. He was awarded coach of the year honors by The Observer & Eccentric newspapers in 1977.

Hansen is a member and past president of the Michigan Interscholastic Golf Coaches Association. A graduate of Northern Michigan University, with an master's degree from Rutgers, Hansen is married, has three children and has been a longtime Holly resident.
