There's a wonderful feeling of within HOURS of the fire, offers of service within the services, weddended by the services, weddended by the services within the services, weddended by the services within the services, weddended by the services within the services with services.

They've really extended places to hold Sabhath services, weddended by the services with services and space places to hold Sabhath services, weddended by the services with services.

Within HOURS of the fire, offers of services were in the school "Decause even in it's their building." Fishman said.

Those who need more room or prefer a regular sanctuary, are making arrangements to relocate special celebrations or services in other syna-

particular of services in other synagogues.

David Newman, who celebrated his bar mitevah Saturday at the Church of Christ Scientist, was thankful that the celebration was held — no matter
where the location.

"I'll remember that day all my life. I was afraid the ecremony might have been cancelled," the West Bloomfiled
youngster sall.

"I'm happy because I'll probably go down in history as one of the few to have a bar mitzvah in a church. And I'm glad I'm having it with my own rabbi.

"But I'm sad because it (was) in a

rabbi.
"But I'm sad because it (was) in a church. And I'm disappointed because the Torah burned."

DURING A two-day mourning period, members of the congregation donned black ribbons to symbolize their grief over the loss of five sacred Torahs. Firemen recovered remnants of the scrolls. Tradition dictates that the remains be buried, although no date has been set for the ceremony. Prayer books, pictures of synagogue presidents and other items also were toot in the blaze.

"It's a tragedy when a synagogue is destroyed," noted Senior Rabbi Irwin Groner of Congregation Shaarey-
