PIONEER WOMEN-NA'AMAT has dedicated its agricultural high school, located near Gedera, Israel, in memory of the late Beba Idelson who served as secretary-general of Na'amat for 43 years.

The Beba Idelson Agricultural High School is one of three such facilities operated by the 50,000 members in 500 clubs across the U.S. The school is a four-year coeducational boarding school with an enrollment of 180 students, many of them from disadvantaged families.

Among those at the dedication was Frieda Leemon, immediate past president of Pioneer Women-Na'amat, a Farmington Hills resident.

WESTSIDE SINGLES meet for a dance party at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow night in Roma's of Livonia on Schoolcraft, one block west of Inkster Road. Admission of $4 is asked at the door.

FARMINGTON HILLS SENIOR CENTER hosts its Valentine Day Dance beginning at 11 a.m. tomorrow in its facilities in Mercy Center, 11 Mile, through Gate 4, east of Middlebelt. Word from the staff is "Wear Red."

And wearing T-shirts is the order of the day for Wednesday, Feb. 16 when all comers are asked to show their favorite graffiti on T-shirts for all activities on the regular 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. schedule.

Dale Winnie will be in the center from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 17, to answer any questions seniors have on legal matters. Participants are asked to sign up ahead of time for a specific appointment.

Seniors are reminded that the center will be closed all day Monday, Feb. 21.

MOONDUSTERS, a singles dance group make up of those over the age of 40, meet at 9 p.m. every Saturday to dance to live bands in Livonia Activities Center, 15218 Farmington Road. The dance for this Saturday will have a Valentine's Day decor. The event is open to all singles over the age of 40 in all surrounding communities.

Admission of $3.50 will be asked at the door.

GREATER DETROIT CHRYSLAR-THIEMUM SOCIETY meet at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 13, in the community room of Tel-12 Mall, 12 Mile and Telegraph, Southfield.

William Kusey, of W. R. Grace Company, leads an informative program on various commercial horticultural products and their uses in the garden.

Mrs. Joseph Neuman, plant chairperson for the society, will report on new and available mums plants to be offered at the group's annual plant sale.

The meeting is open to the public without charge. Questions are invited.

FARMINGTON WOMEN'S AGLOW members are invited to bring their husbands to a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 14, in Sweden House, Orchard and Grand River.

OLDER WOMEN'S LEAGUE (OWL) Farmington Area Chapter, meets at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 14, in Farmington Hills Branch Library, 32737 12 Mile.

Subject for the evening is "Motherhood and Apple Pie," a project of the national organization which aims to bring equality for women in the Social Security system.

Overall, OWL works to bring about an equity in the laws that will give women the same retirement income that men receive.

The meeting is open to women of all ages without charge.

Inquiries are taken by Gertrude Kirkwood, 531-3498.

FARMINGTON AREA JAYCETTES host an open meeting for all women between the ages of 18-35 at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 15, in Farmington Community Center, Farmington Road, north of 10 Mile.

Tour, dinner and show in center's calendar

Farmington Community Center hosts an evening in the Botsford Inn Dinner Theatre on Sunday, Feb. 13.

The evening begins at 6 p.m. with a tour of the historic inn at 26000 Grand River at Eight Mile which reveals a part of Farmington history through its rooms and furnishings of the mid-1800s.

The tour is followed by refreshments at a cash bar and a full course dinner served in the Coach House at 7 p.m.

Then Botsford Inn Dinner Theatre presents a Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt musical, "The Fantasticks," the longest-running show in the history of the American theatre. Showtime is 8:30 p.m.

Reservations should be made at the Community Center, 24705 Farmington Road. The evening package is $18 per person. Seating for small groups can be arranged, if reservations are made early.

Penquins on duty

A bit of light-hearted clasp has been added to Farmington Players' production—a six-member group that will be known as "The Penquins." Showgoers will be guided into the theater barn led by parking attendants in full dress suits for opening and closing night performances. From left Sandra Sutherland, Sue Rogers, Rosemary Emmert, Lou Emmert, Barbara Wicher and Nancy Cleri will be on duty Saturday for the closing of "The Glass Menagerie." Next bit of duty for the Penquins will be opening night for the players' production of "Three Bags Full."

Making it in the job market

Maria Hall who wants to be a bookkeeper now has a lead to a clerk-typist job with the Michigan Employment Security Commission where she has worked before.

"I've been divorced more than two years," she said. "I've been trying all that time to get a permanent job. My goal is to be employed. I'm not so unrealistic I would hold out for a dream job."

ALICE LIGGETT of Detroit is another divorced homemaker. Although she's had part-time employment, she needs full-time work. "I'd like to work in a hospital or taking care of older people or children, or maybe as a children's aide."

"I'm optimistic."

Divorced three years ago, Joan Freeman of Farmington Hills said she's getting to the point where she'd take anything.

"I had nine years as a dental assistant-receptionist and I'm trying to get back into that," she said. "I haven't worked in 23 years and I came here in August and took the workshop."

Freeman said she found a job immediately, but it didn't work out so she returned to JVS. "I was really on a roll for a while. I had 12 interviews in two weeks," she said. But illness interrupted her job hunt and she's back at it again.

"I have a positive attitude, but it's because of this group. I had no confidence and they really got me to go out and try. This is super."

Edna Wardlaw of Farmdale retired from the working world and now wants to get back her confidence and a part-time job. "This program is really helping me," she said. "Right now I'm brushing up on my typing. I worked in a factory before because of the high pay."

A SOUTHFIELD woman, who asked not to be identified, stopped working years ago to raise a family. Later, she and her husband divorced.

"I was a former reading clinician with the Southfield School, but I couldn't get a job. I tried employment services and every way I could with no luck."

Now she is trying to consolidate her goals, rewrite her resume and try to find employment as a consumer's service representative.

"I've been interviewing in private schools," she said. "Last year I worked as a aide in Southfield."

Meta Stogel of Detroit hasn't worked since 20 years ago when she was a secretary with typing and shorthand skills. "I stopped to raise a family and I'm still married, but now I want a life for myself."

Lumberg said the women role-play. Interview one another and use a video camera to see how they appear to others.

TO BOLSTER confidence in the women's appearance and also give them fashion tips, a mini-fashion seminar was arranged with clothing and commentary by Casual Corner in the Tel-Twelve Mall.

Marilyn Remeny of Southfield, Barbara Cohoe of Birmingham and Mildred Friedman of Franklin volunteered to model several outfits for the job club group.

Sue Heppner of Casual Corners pointed out the way to dress for job hunting or the office. She told the women to try for clothes that can make seasonal transitions and to depend on classic suits for the office.

She showed them how to change the look of an outfit with a different blouse or a string of pearls. "Wear plain classic pumps," she cautioned and "wear a slip."

When the legislation to renew the grant for the Displaced Homemaker comes to the floor, Rep. Mary Brown will be the House of Representatives sponsor.

"JACK FAXON will support this legislation on the floor and with the Department of Labor," Lumberg said. "And Rep. Maxine Berman will be a cosponsor."

"We work with women from Wayne and Oakland Counties and make contacts with employers as well."

Lextel, one of the new telephone companies with offices in Birmingham and Livonia, has hired several women from the Displaced Homemaker Program.

"One of our women has been working part time in Southfield selling men's clothing," Morse said. "She just got her first paying job as an actress."

These are the happenings that make for a good day at the JVS and a special glow for Lumberg and Morse.

Folk art on display

American folk art will be on display in the Plymouth Historical Museum from Feb. 3 to May 8.

Among the many unique pieces exhibited is a tinmith's pierced tin lantern trade sign which identified the store for those who could not read or write; a cobalt-blue, brush-decorated Ovoid jug, circa 1840; a wooden barber pole, circa 1875; spatulas from the 1700s; quilts; tape-painted tinware; wooden butter molds; wooden cookie cutters and paintings.

The Plymouth Historical Museum, located at 155 S. Main Street in Plymouth, is open 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday. There is an admission of $1 for adults; 50 cents for those 11-17; and 25 cents for children.
