

Second runs Tom Panzenhagen

"Breaker Morant" (1980), 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Feb. 17; "Gallipoli" (1981), 9:20 p.m. Wednesday and Feb. 17, at the Punch & Judy, 21 Kercheval, Grose Pointe, Farm, phone 882-7363, $2.50. Running times 107 and 111 minutes.

Frequently you can judge a nation's outlook and self-image by its films, and that's certainly the case with these two Australian imports. "Breaker Morant" and "Gallipoli" are marvelous absurdities-of-war films, but both evince a strong, thematic undercurrent of national pride and unity, and an equally strong distaste for the ruling British. See these pictures and you come away with a feeling not only of turn-of-the-century Australia but of contemporary Australia, as well.

"Rocky Mountain" (1959), 10 a.m. Saturday on Ch. 50. Originally 83 minutes.
Errol Flynn was 41, and looked 51, when he made "Rocky Mountain," one in a regrettable series of westerns that he did after the war. "San Antonio," "Silver River," "Montana" and "Rocky Mountain" are enough to make the most loyal Flynn fan shudder. See if you can catch the obligatory explanation of what a Tasmanian devil (with an Australian accent) is doing west of the Pecos. A future Mrs. F., Patricia Wymore, co-stars.

their village, but Eastwood twists and manipulates this theme until it actually makes sense. Midget Billy Curtis also stars.

Rating: $3.50.

"Katie Rockne — All American" (1940), 1 Wednesday night on Ch. 50. Originally 98 minutes.
No, you won't hear Ronald Reagan utter the immortal lines "Win one for the Gipper," because that segment of the film was cut after a squabble with the heirs of real Notre Dame footballer George Gipp, but Pat O'Brien's performance as the legendary coach is memorable. Lloyd Bacon directs and Donald Crisp also stars.

Rating: $2.50.
