Ayckbourn, who has written a string of comedy hits, is often called the British Neil Simon, but his plays rely more heavily on farcical situations than on witty one-liners.

The set is divided into quarters, with alternating backdrops and furniture styles to contrast the two couples. The staid, traditional living room belongs to the Fosters, Fiona (Joan Bowes) and Frank (Bob Bowes). The modern,

Dick Purtan's back in town as morning-drive show host from 6-10 a.m. Mondays-Saturdays on radio station WCZY (95.5-FM) in Oak Park. Purtan, a Bloomfield Township resident, took his radio show from WXYZ-AM in Southfield to CKLW-AM in Windsor, before bringing his comedy-and-music-filled program back across the border to the station known as "Cozy." Purtan plans to spend more time on topical issues and less on fictional characters for the show at WCZY. He continues to host "Purtan's People" comedy spots daily on WDIV-TV.

As Fiona, Joan Bowes keeps her patrician cool no matter how absurd the situation gets. Always self-assured and in control, she is the perfect foil for her husband's comic bungling.

Lowman excels when Terry's fiery temper flares. Though hopelessly nonchalant about housekeeping and tend-
