Womens career

A panel of professional and business women will discuss their career experiences at the season's final Career Women program, sponsored by the Jewish Welfare Federation Women's Division, Sunday, April 24 at the United Hebrew Schools, 21550 W. 12 Mile, Southfield.

Beginning with 10:30 a.m. brunch, the "Profiles in Careers" program will close out the group's series of lectures on topics of Jewish and general interest. The Career Women section brings together, in a creative network, those working women who wish to play an active role in the division's educational, fund-raising and social activities.

Among those participating in the April 24 panel will be Dr. Susan Caron, a pedodontist, assistant professor and treasurer of Alpha Omega dental fraternity. disappeared around the corner, polles said.

WHEN THE TEEN-AGER arrived at the scene, his tennis shoes were matched to the shoepfuls running between the two yards. The shoes matched the prints. A man answering to Shottorif's description tried to grab the shoes from police, officers said.

The man then apparently punched and shoved the officers and fold the teen-ager to 'get the shoes. That's all they got."

The teen-ager then grabbed the shoes and then tried to help the man pull away from police, officers said. The 18-year-old arrived while police were still at the scene and was later arrested in connection with the breaking and entire.
