

He finds dictionary of herbs

Herbs are the leaves and stems of soft, succulent plants that usually grow in the Temperate Zone. They may be used fresh or dried; most are avail-able whole or ground, some crushed.

able whole or ground, some crushed.

Spices come from bark, roots, leaves, stems, buds, seeds or fruits of aromatic plants and trees that usually grow only in the tropics. They are atways dried, available whole or ground.

When I opened a decorated roll of paper towels, I was surprised to discover a mini-dictionary of 20 herbs and spices neally written on the white background:

ground:

Allspice — Tastes like a blend of spices, used to flavor cakes and stews.

Anise — A licorice flavored herb, use fresh claves in salads, seeds in cake and with fish.

This elegant pineapple dessert can be created in just minutes

Weeknight meals in a busy household have to go on the table fast. Because of this, there is sometimes no dessert course. It doesn't have to be that way — even super-busy cooks can create this elegant fresh pineapple dessert in minutes.

Almond Creme Pineapple is served in its own pineapple and. To prepare, just cut one-third off the side of the pineapple lengthwise, leaving the crown intact. Use a pineapple knife or any curved knife to remove the pineapple. But to save the one-third portion of the shell you cut off — it becomes the serving "dish" for the Almond Creme Dressing.

Out and invert the pineapple shells as your first step in preparing the evening meal. Marinate and refrigerate that lead fruit right away. When you're ready dessert, the fruit will be ready to serve. Spoon the marinated fresh pineapple and the Almond Creme Dressing into their serving shells. Then just sit back and ac-cept the compliments on your extra-spe-cial weeknight dessert.
