City kids learn all about farms

Artie Leo arranges some of the farmyard animals, including Fido, to help teach what life really is like down on the farm.

Julia Najjar finds setting up house on the farm has Matt Fitzpatrick and Lisa Domol survey the entire landscape of farm life and put on some final touches of their proud dis-play.

Proud third graders at Our Lady of Sorrows from both rooms 109 and 110 constructed this elaborate display of a dairy farm before they headed for the summer recess dairy farm before they headed for the sammer recess.

Led by Sister Joanne Spisz, the students learned not only about farm life during this project, but also about are design, math and paragraph writing, according to Spisz.

"The reproduction of the dairy farm shows the potentials of young Amreicans and their willingness to use that talent when properly encouraged and guided," she said.

Ice cream stells, cardboard and plastites formed parts of the construction materials. The students' reference work, alway and planning culminated in what Spisz terms as a masterpiece.
