Small handwriting indicates unique person who has good concentration

Dear Mrs. Green:

I've been intrigued by your column ever since I started receiving the Observer. I've always thought it would be interesting to see what my handwriting reveals about me.

I find my handwriting slant changes almost daily — sometimes it slants and at other times, it's straight up and down. I hope this is enough to give you an accurate example of my handwriting.

J. P., Livonia

Handwritten note: I find my handwriting slant changes almost daily — sometimes it slants and at other times, it's straight up and down.

difficult to place any credence in the theme song from "Annie," where she belts out "the sun will come out tomorrow."

At this time in your life you are dissatisfied with either the work role or social, or perhaps both. In addition to this, there seems to be no one in your life giving you any positive reinforcement. All of us need a pat on the back at times. Unfortunately, you do not seem to be receiving it.

Added to this is the inability to free yourself from something that happened in the past, and you continue to blame yourself. Your emotions run deep, and you do not find it easy to forgive and forget.

Security is very important to you. Money and what it will buy is high on your priority list.

From your very early life, you did not see your parents as united in the manner in which they raised you. Some of your fears may be the result of these early life experiences which were not your fault.

If you have a question about your handwriting, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist. In care of this newspaper. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age and handedness also are helpful. Feedback is always appreciated.

Vacillation between right slant and vertical is tied to your emotional nature. When you write with a right slant, your heart is in control, and when you write straight up and down, the head rules.

The minuscule size of your handwriting tells me you are a unique person with well-developed concentration. You like to do one thing at a time and dislike distractions and being rushed. You are aware of all details. Sometimes they assume such importance that you may miss the forest for the trees.

The legibility of your handwriting and clear alignment suggest your desire to make yourself understood and the ability for lucid expression. You also have persuasive powers. But in emotional situations, you can slip into an argument without much provocation.

THE DOWNWARD slope of all writing lines suggest that you are inclined to view life and living with a negative attitude. Ostensibly, you find it difficult.

Tips for the summer

There's still time to get out and enjoy the lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer and here are suggestions for enjoying them.

If you've always wanted to try camping but were hesitant to invest in expensive equipment, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has a rent-a-tent program for some state parks and recreation areas.

Prices are $12 per night at campsites that offer modern conveniences and only $10 per night at more rustic sites. For more information, call the DNR parks division office at 373-1270.

HOME GARDENERS can earn special praise and recognition for their green thumb expertise. If you're growing a mammoth melon, tremendous tomato or giant anything, enter it in the Giant Veggie Contest. Just pick your larger-than-average fruit or vegetable at its peak and take a clear color photo of yourself or one of your kids holding it and send it with your name, address, phone number and the item's weight to the Michigan Natural Resources magazine, All Outdoors, Box 30034, Lansing 48909 by Dec. 31. Entries will be judged
