Writer is 'always chasing rainbows'

Dear Lorene:
Some time ago I read in the Eccentric that your maiden name was Collett. I am a Collett also.
I read you column in the West Bloomfield Eccentric and am curious what you have to say about my writing. I'm left handed and so must pick up my hand to extend my writing each time I write a word or two.
I write fast and do most everything in a hurry. Fast always on the way to the next project.
Good wishes and good health.
J.O., West Bloomfield

Dear J.O.:
I expected your interesting handwriting this week for a couple of reasons. First because we share a common maiden name and I wanted to see how you would mesh with my "Collett clan" — two sisters and three brothers.
Then I was taken by your high degree of enthusiasm, dynamism and fun-loving nature. Your enthusiasm is very contagious. I doubt if you have any trouble getting people involved in your many interests and projects.
You are also a fluent conversationalist. Bet you've never been at a loss for words.
There is a basic optimism here. You are always chasing rainbows. And I believe there is also faith in a higher being.
It is not difficult to see why you are involved in so many activities. The need for activity, change and variety is here in those long, lower loops. And a goodly supply of vitality is also here in the heavy pressure of your handwriting.

THE RAPID tempo of your writing suggests the ability to convert thoughts into action very quickly. You are not a long-range planner. You are the "doer" who plans as you move along.
Although you are a veritable whirlwind of activity, you also need to take time out of your busy days to just relax and be alone.

Persistence and tenacity do not allow you to give up until you complete a task. Small amounts of aggressiveness and stubbornness keep you from being a pushover.
Your signature tells me you are not just an extension of your husband. You are an independent lady and seek recognition for your own accomplishments.
I think you will fit very nicely on one of the branches of our family tree.

If you have a question about your handwriting, write to Mrs. Lorene Collett Green, a certified graphologist, in care of this newspaper. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age and handedness are also helpful. Feedback is always welcome.
