

OU library headed by a new dean

Ernest O. Frankie, former director of public services at New York University Libraries, has been named professor of the library and dean of the university library at Oakland University. The appointment concludes a national search for a successor to George Gardner who has returned to the faculty.

Frankie holds a bachelor's degree from Bowling Green State University (1957), and degrees from the University of Michigan and George Washington University.

She is the author and editor of a number of professional publications and an active participant in the American Research Library and American Library Association programs. Prior to her appointment at New York University Libraries (1980-1983), Frankie was associate executive director of the Association of Research Libraries (1973-1979).

She also worked at the American Society for Information Science, ERIC Clearinghouse on Library and Information Sciences, Ohio State University Center for Vocational and Technical Education, and in the libraries at Wayne State University and the University of Michigan.

LA pitcher's battle with alcohol viewed

"The Comeback," a film about Los Angeles pitcher Bob Welch and his struggle with alcoholism, will be featured at Brighton Hospital's next community education program on the disease.

Welch, a Hazel Park native, attended Eastern Michigan University before being recruited by the Dodgers. In the film he discusses his drinking habits in high school and college and explains how the disease affected his personal and professional life.

After the film, a trained counselor will be available to discuss alcoholism and answer questions about the help that is available for both the alcoholic and his family.

The showing will be at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1, in Brighton Hospital, East Grand River at Kensington, just off exit 151 on the I-96 freeway. The free informational programs are the first Tuesday of each month.

For more information, contact the hospital at 227-1211 or the hospital's outpatient department at 227-6143.

Brock to aid Broomfield's Congress campaign fund

William Brock, U.S. chief trade negotiator, will speak at a fund-raiser Wednesday, Oct. 21, for U.S. Rep. William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Brock will discuss import quotas, the value of the Japanese yen and tax treatment of American cars sold abroad at an 8 a.m. breakfast in the Troy Hilton Inn. Leaders of the Big Three auto manufacturers are expected to attend.

Reservations are being handled by Republican headquarters in Birmingham at 648-8414. Price is $75.

Brock was a U.S. senator from Tennessee and chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Broomfield's 18th District includes most of Troy, Birmingham-Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, the Rochester area and the Farmington area.
