

Technician appointed

Harry R. Williams of Farmington, general director of the engineering research department at Detroit Edison, was recently appointed by the Michigan Technological University Board of Control to the development committee for the university's Institute of Wood Research (IWR).

Williams is a graduate of the University of Detroit with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering. He served as a combat engineer in World War II and joined Detroit Edison in 1951 as a co-op student.

As a member of the IWR Development Committee, Williams will advise and assist in the development of the technical programs for the Institute.

First aid class planned in area

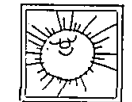

An advanced first aid course, open to Farmington-area residents, begins today and will meet every Thursday 6:30-10:30 p.m. until March 1 at East Middle School.

Hills woman plans volunteer awards

Farmington Hills resident Mary Jane Watkins (right) joined United Foundation's Heart of Gold Award Council's officials in planning for the 1984 volunteer awards program. Volunteers are honored for work in child, family, senior citizen, cultural and educational activities.

Educator attends D.C. seminar

Dr. Noreen Daly of Farmington Hills, chairwoman of the education department at Madonna College, Livonia, attended the board of directors meeting of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education last weekend in Washington, D.C.

Daly, a member of the executive committee and a director of the national association representing schools that train teachers, helped shape the association's response to the Commission on Excellence in Education report, A Nation at Risk.

The directors also set the agenda for the annual professional meeting to be held in February, for which Daly chairs the planning committee, and were briefed on national and state public policy decisions on education. AACTE represents some 725 schools, colleges, and departments of education. Its purpose is to stimulate excellence in teacher education.
