

Polignant picture

"Tribute," described as "a poignant picture of the human condition" by Bernard Slade, is produced by Farmington Players for a four week-end run, through Nov. 19. Ralph Roast (at left) takes the lead role with players Dave McCabe, Sharon Holdrich, Art Lomas and Maggie Elms. Tickets are available by calling the box office, 635-8822.

Tickets are on sale for Christmas Walk

Tickets are on sale for "Christmas Walk," the every-other-year pre-Christmas walk through seven area homes decorated for the holiday sponsored by Hill and Dale Garden Club.

Maps will be given with tickets for the homes that will be open 1-8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11. The $7 donation includes an invitation to tea in Farmington Community Center, where club members will be manning boutiques and selling a large variety of holiday decorations and home accessories.

All of the proceeds will go toward perpetuating the garden therapy classes club members lead in 28 special education classrooms in Farmington Public Schools. About 300 area students benefit every year from the program that was initiated here in 1961.

The students range in age from 5-25. Their disabilities vary and include those with orthopedic or multiple handicaps, the hearing disabled, hard of hearing or deaf, emotionally impaired, blind or mentally handicapped.

The classes include sessions on planting, growing, study and arrangement of natural materials. Emphasis is placed on encouraging a better understanding of nature, wild life and horticulture. All projects are selected to stimulate each of the five senses.

ONE OF THE requirements for membership in Hill and Dale is some contribution each year to the garden therapy classes. Members collect materials and twice each month assemble kits to be used by each student.

The women who work in the classrooms have been dubbed "The Garden Ladies," recognized as an affectionate sign of welcome from the students. The members' work in the classroom has been recognized with awards from the National Federation of Garden Clubs and its state and local affiliates.

Advanced tickets for Christmas Walk are available by calling Mrs. Phillip Swan, 635-7240 or Margo Gordon, 477-5483.

Tickets will also be on sale in Farmington Community Center, Farmington Road north of 10 Mile, on the day of the walk only. Chairman for this year's walk is Katie Wernys.
