Depression overcome in daylong workshop

Continuum Center of Oakland University is offering its daylong workshop "Feeling Good vs. Depression" Saturday, Dec. 3, in Mercy Conference Center, 11 Mile and Middlebelt Road. The workshop runs from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sally Aune will be conducting the workshop. She is a Farmington Hills resident, a member of the adjunct staff of the Continuum Center, and serves as director of family counseling and education for Lutheran Social Services of Michigan.

The workshop will provide participants the chance to learn and practice simple techniques which can be used to control feelings and behavior when sadness threatens to become paralyzing. "These workshops are designed not only to teach," said Aune. "They also provide a whole day of positive, up experiences. Participants experience new ways of feeling good."

Fee for the workshop is $35. For registration, call the Continuum Center, 377-3033.
