

"Say dog biscuit." Don't hesitate to pass the camera around this Christmas so children get a chance to record some of their favorite holiday moments.

- Try to photograph kids with presents they receive from relatives. These pictures make excellent thank-you notes.
- Plan your photos ahead of time. Make a list of the photos you want to be sure to get. Then tape the list on the back of the camera.
- Avoid trying to put too much into one photograph. The trick is to take several pictures, zeroing in on a single activity at a time.

- Vary the angles, distances and styles of your pictures. Don't forget that you can shoot with the camera held horizontally or vertically. Try both before selecting your composition.
