son and our SWCC — how we are coordinating with television production.

"This is not the workshop," she said, adding that this particular orientation program is for people interested in signing up for workshops scheduled for February. The January workshops are filled already.

Three types of workshops are offered: beginners studio production, beginners portable production and advanced production.

"They (residents) would take the workshop that would most apply to their production," Samouelian said.

Residents are asked to come prepared with an idea for a show they would like to produce. That way, Samouelian said, residents can apply the production knowledge to the show they have in mind.

obituaries
