

A Farmer's Finance

The old saying that "the farmer is the backbone of the nation" is just as true now as it ever was. He is, and probably always will be.

—And it is our pride that we have always been the farmer's friend. Our every facility is at his disposal, and we urge him now, as always, to accord us the privilege of advising him and assisting in solving his financial problems.

USES TELEPHONE TO BEAT JUMP IN AUTO TIRE PRICE

That the telephone, as a selling medium, is indispensable to the modern business man was illustrated recently in a large wholesale house in Saginaw, Michigan.

The manager of the concern received a telegram on a Sunday morning that on Monday morning the price of tires would increase fifteen per cent. He immediately placed telephone calls for all the retailers in his district, which comprises all of the central part of Michigan. He was astounded at the prompt answer in which connections were made and upon gumming up the business, he found that he had sold $21,000 worth of tires in just a few minutes, which, he declared, was the largest day's business the Saginaw office had ever done. A selling campaign by long distance was immediately planned by the manager.

ONE REASON FOR REPORTS OF "TELEPHONE OUT OF ORDER"

In replacing the telephone receiver on its hook hurriedly after a telephone conversation, it happens sometimes that the receiver is allowed to rest on a book or other object, so that the book remains elevated just as it is when the receiver is off the hook, and as a result, the signal light on the switchboard does not flash to notify the switchboard operator that the subscriber has finished.

When this happens to you, your telephone is cut off and no one can get you. The operator will perceive that something is wrong after a time and try to attract your attention by means of the "howler" which makes an audible sound in your telephone, or she will try to reach you through some other telephone. All this takes a lot of time when she might be serving other subscribers and you have no service until the condition is corrected. In the aggregate much time and service is lost in this way.
