The Chemist and the Cow

A chemist is the first man to enter every car of raw material that reaches the LARRO mill. Samples are taken and carefully tested—they must be up to LARRO quality standard or that car is rejected. Every ingredient gets this preliminary test—there is no guesswork—it must be "right" before it is considered good enough to go into LARRO.

And LARRO in its finished state is analyzed every fifteen minutes for protein, fat and fibre content. Everything must be exact. Cows don't go off feed on LARRO, because LARRO never goes off standard.

Put your cows on this better ration and watch your milk profits grow.

Clock Almost Entirely of Glass.
A Bohemian glass polisher has finished a clock which, with the exception of the springs, is entirely of glass.

"Dog Watch"
The term "dog watch" is a corruption of "dodge" watch, the "dodge" being an arrangement to prevent men from being on duty every day at the same hours.

On many of the late model cars you will notice that the tops alone give distinction and novelty to their lines and general appearance. We can put a modish top on your car for a low sum.
