Few Good Dinners.
"My husband has no bad habits whatever," boasted a wife. "He never drinks, and he spends all his evenings at home. Why, he doesn't even belong to a club."
"Does he smoke?" inquired a friend.
"Only to moderation. He likes a cigar after he has had a good dinner, but I don't suppose he smokes two cigars a month."

UNDER THE MISTLETOE
"Oh, professor, see the big bunch of mistletoe I have hung on the mantel!" exclaimed the young lady, standing under it and smiling coquishly.
Young and Learned Professor (looking near-sightedly through his glasses)—"Ah, yes, it is an excellent specimen of the Viscum Album, of the order Loranthaceae. It is a jotted dichotomous shrub." And that was all.

GOT PERSONAL
"Can you tell me how to restore ivory to its natural tint?"
"You should get a shampoo."
"Of course."
The youthful biter was a proud smile as he turned out on parade for the first time. He was accosted by an officer and asked if he knew all the bugle calls.
"Not all, perhaps, sir," he admitted modestly, "but I know most of them."
"Well, now," continued the officer, "what would you do in case of fire?"
"Blow the call for lights out, sir."

Sign of the Times.
One of the latest additions to the language is "dogs," a slang term for feet.
"Kicks" are shoes. The expression has been in use for a number of years and is well established.
With this glossary you will be able to understand the following sign which was recently placed by a shoe dealer over a display of ladies' footwear:
"Classy Kicks for Cuddling Dogs."
"Giving Him First Chance."
"You're got plenty of nerve. The idea of accusing my chickens and then trying to sell them to me."
"Well, sah, I thought you'd pay a better price for chickens you'd raised yourself. You'd know what you're buying."

Up-to-Date.
"And what about your references?" asked the lady who was hiring a cook.
"References?"
"Yes. My advertisement distinctly mentioned references."
"Certainly, ma'am. But I thought that applied to you."
"Cheap, But..."
Divorce costs 20 cents in Russia, but we would hardly say that the cheapness of it recommends it.
"Knowledge and Understanding."
"The improvement of the understanding is for two ends: First, our own increase of knowledge; secondly, to enable us to deliver and make out the knowledge to others.—Locke."
