Beware of Wet Umbrella
A wet umbrella carelessly placed where it rests against the cords of your telephone is apt to put your telephone out of business. All covered wires that carry the voice currents must be kept perfectly dry and care must be taken that dampness shall reach them, else the service may be interrupted while search is made for the cause of trouble and the necessary repairs are made.

THROW YOUR LIGHT

on your goods—not into the eyes of customers

In very many stores the lights are so unskillfully placed as to discourage buying. They are more in evidence than the goods on sale. It is well to remember that lights may conceal, as well as display, an object; and that a bright light in a customer's eyes can easily lose you sales.

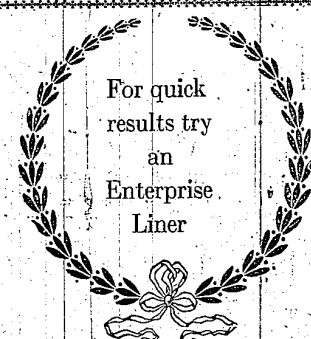

We shall be glad to inspect your lighting and make suitable recommendations. No charge.
