

THE HIGH SCHOOL TATTLER

The two sections of the tenth grade English class are studying journalism. The first section has completed its study and made a newspaper. The second section will make a newspaper soon, after which both papers will be published. Considerable competition is being exercised. Wednesday both sections of the class will go to Detroit to see "The Detroit News."

The staff for the second section is as follows: Editor-in-Chief—Lillian Collins; Sporting Editor—John Veitch; City Editor—Gerald Parker; City Reporters—Maurice Graham, Gladys Landau, Clarence Manzel, Gertrude Otto, and Robert Shaw; Society Editor—Clara Tredway; Correspondent—Evel Hedberg; Feature Story Writers—Harold Turner, Byron Lapham; Joke Editor—Byron Ross; Cartoonist and Advertising Manager—Berice Millard; Layout Editor—Virgil Oliver; Continued Story Editor—Barbara Empson.

Monday evening there was to be a "League" meeting but on account of poor attendance it was postponed. Mr. Westcott went and brought the boys' basket ball cup home.

—Alice Arnold.

Athletics

Farmington took a back seat in their first ball game with Northville Friday, 6 to 1. Their chances were none too good from the start with only four practices behind them. But the team showed up fairly well as it was, but were no match for Northville who won three weeks practice. The hits were scattered, neither team showing very good form for the first game, and the errors were plentiful. With another week's practice and when Quinn gets his arm into shape, the stage will be all set for the Redford-Farmington freecia here Friday.

Following is a report of the basket ball year for individual standings:

Player	Games	Goals	Throws	Pnts
Quinn	29	70	28	168
Salow	23	57	17	131
Ryan	22	50	8	103
Cousins	23	19	14	52
Wizom	23	13	9	35
Graham	12	6	2	14
Veitch	6	7	0	14

The team won 20 out of 23 games with a run of 18 consecutive victories.

In the 23 games a total of 522 points were scored by Farmington against a total of 239 by opponents.

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Northville	1	0	1000
Plymouth	1	0	1000
Redford	1	0	1000
Farmington	0	1	0000
Wayne	0	1	0000
Dearborn	0	1	0000

—John Veitch.

The Jockey Companion—Maurice Graham: "Say, Grace Chamberlain told me I was the first lad to kiss her."

Clarence Manzel: "Too bad she got such a poor start."

Mildred Adams (at the table): "I am afraid you don't like tea."

Johnny Veitch (a love sick lad): "I like tea well enough, but it is the next letter that I adore."

Observations

Albert Manley: "Spruced up" last Monday morning. Maybe he was trying to get on the good side of the Easter bunny.

If any one needs surveying measuring or anything pertaining to geometry done, he may employ the members of the geometry classes. Deficient work is guaranteed.

We are distressed to report that Gerald Parker has worn but one shoe to school this week. The cause was an ill behaving toe. Of course, he wore a rubber on the sore foot.

Probably Byron Lapham doesn't act as nurse maid to his new sister for his attendance is still regular and he isn't tardy.

Our students of Scotch descent must feel perfectly comfortable during these days of plaid.

The boys are beginning to work in their shirt sleeves.

LUMBER SAVED BY NEW SAWING METHOD

Under conventional methods the proportion of board feet in body parts by actual measurement to the wood content of the entire tree is distressingly low. One-third of the tree (the limbs and top) is wasted before the log gets to the mill. Only 55 to 60 per cent of the log is actually converted into body parts.

A sample tree was cut up into body parts under the new method and the results compared with the amount of parts which the old method of edging and sawing would have given. The results were so startling that the system was put into effect at the various Ford plants as soon as possible.

The tree gave two irregularly shaped logs which scaled 238 board feet. There were also a number of branches and the top. The best use that could be found for these under conventional lumbering methods would be to send them through the wood distillation plant. Instead they were saved up and marked for part sawing.

After the logs had been sawed by the Ford method and the patterns laid out, the planks were measured up according to the boards which could be obtained under the old edging and trimming method and the number of available parts in each computed.

All parts were reduced to board feet in actual lumber content. The edging and trimming gave 127 board feet of body parts. Under the Ford system the same planks yielded 204, a gain of 77 board feet or 32 per cent. The limbs and top—hitherto considered worthless except for distillation or fuel, gave 170 board feet additional making a total of 397 board feet of parts as against the 127 board feet obtainable under the old method.

In the interests of forest conservation the Ford Motor Company makes public of the new method, and it is hoped that other companies will take advantage of the economies offered.
