Uses for Old Inner Tube

An old inner tube is never discarded in our household, where neatly cut-rubber bands of various widths are rubber bunds of various widths are always in demand. A paper-wraphed package is quickly fastened with one or two of them. My parafilind jelly glasses, if they have no tin, covers, are covered with circles of paper and, held in place by these rubber hands. Flowing sleeves or paper cuffs, to protect long sleeves while working, may be held in place with them. My small, daughter uses them as garters to hold bands in her bloomers.—Delineator.

"We are making a real army. The men who are able to work are being currefully trained by the crusty old laron' Steeben and a number of French officers."

That they did not fail was probably due to the fact that there were men in the army like this one who seemed to have some little understanding of the will of God and, the duty of man. This letter and others like it, traveled far and wide and more than a million hands began to work for the army.
