New and Artistic Sweaters in Mode

Winsome Models Have Both Practical and Picturesque Value.

Bwaters have become so important a part of a woman's dress that some of tigh best designers are giving their attention to the creation of new and artislic models. The utility garment, having no claim whatsoever to "tooka," having no claim whatsoever to "tooka, and the sease of it and the stendily infreasing popularity of sports dress spurred the modistes to develop the possibilities of the sweater it both beauty and style. The result, hore a fashion authority in the New York Times, has been a, great warmen of the sweater in the standard of the field in the designing of all forms of the sweater and in its use. The types of sweater now in vogue are bewildering as to material, form and color. For service at the seashore or the mountains, for cross-country hitches, motoring, yachting and innumerable other purposes there are sweaters of lightweight wook, initted or woven, or cut from cloth. These employ the most vivid decorative colors, and some of them are sweaters of the string, effacing the memory of the first imodels, seasons past, which were forly, monotonous blings, usually of gray or brown or fanned red. wide range, gay, delicate, dark and black. In this type, as in all of the others, the white sweater is most becoming, and is most suitable for wear with the smart sports skirts of wite finance, rathe, eponge, sik or jersey. The last word in style and beauty is a sweater of crocheted hand-mide heavy silk floss. This type was first shown in the tuxedo shape with revers and helt, quite long and coat-like. But gradually this model has been changed, and the one-piece slip-on is the newest and most fashlomable. It is popular with the woman of slender figure and straight silhunette.

Curlously enough, while the sweater has become so thoroughly Americanized that we think of it as peculiarly our own, the handsomest of these checheted slik sweaters came to us from England and Ireland. Some, done in fancy stitches with, heavy twisted floss of ivory white, are exceedingly hemitiful, and are genuine tuxuries, being uncommon and coatty.
