THE JUNIOR DOINGS.
 Dear Housewives:
 Last week you read a letter from Santa, and in it you read about the Juniors giving a "Gift Sale" on December 6th we wish to give you some good details.
 Do not misunderstand our sale—we are not going to offer you anything worthless, cheap or second-hand.
 Are there a few people to whom you would like to give a remembrance on Xmas and feel you can not give the usual expensive gift. Then do come and select some dainty article of real use from our gift sale. Try us! Nothing ventured; nothing gained.
 As a special treat to the kiddies we are going to have a 5 cent surprise gift sold directly from Old Santa himself—bring them all.
 Get some goodies at our candy department on the same day. Delicious home made candies.
 Dec. 6th—In the afternoon.
 Hoping to help solve the Xmas gift question for you.
 Sincerely
THE JUNIOR CLASS
UNIVERSALIST BAZAAR AND SUPPER

FIRST OF LYCEUM COURSE
 The first number of the Farmington Community Lyceum Course will be given next Wednesday at the Methodist Community Hall when Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wells will give a program of music and dramatic art. The Wells are known as among the best dramatic artists on the platform. A principal feature of their program will be the presentation of the play "Under Orders," a three-act play, written especially for Mr. and Mrs. Wells by Herbert Thomas, author of "The Attenement," which they gave at Farmington last year and was so well received. A skillful use of dual roles makes possible a clever production of the play by only two actors. In the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Wells it is a vividly realistic play. Preceding the play, which requires one hour for its production, there will be a charming musical prelude. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wells are accomplished musicians as well as actors. Mrs. Wells is a gifted soprano and Mr. Wells a baritone. Together they will sing some of the favorite operatic arias and a group of simple heart songs. Mr. and Mrs. Wells will be remembered as the dramatic party who opened the Farmington Lyceum Course last year and were so greatly enjoyed. Next Wednesday evening at 8:15 at the Methodist Community Hall are the date, time and place. Reserved seat tickets at the Fred L. Cook & Co.'s store. 2-1

Bazaar and Supper
 The Universalist ladies will hold their bazaar and supper Saturday November, 29, at the church. Sale of Christmas articles. Indian baskets, aprons etc...
