The Farmington Women's club enjoyed an open day meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Detroit Institute of Arts. They inspected the loan collection of Dutch masterpieces of the seventeenth century, being shown at that institution and in conjunction listened to a hour talk on "Dutch Art" by Mr. Reginald Poland, educational director and art instructor.
"The exhibition of paintings was so inspiring and stimulating to the artistic consciousness that an expression in words is impossible. One realizes that only a trip to Europe or possibly a tour to all the great American galleries could they see so many of the world's famous masterpieces."

President Gooden of the American Snuff company said at a dinner in New York:
"The snuff business is good when the cotton crop is good. The snuff taker, you see, must have money to pay for his snuff, for the price never goes down."
"If a dealer offers you cheap snuff, tell him the story of the butcher's little boy."
"Now, Willie," his school teacher said to the butcher's little boy, "suppose your father had a pig weighing 145 pounds and sold it for 6 cents a pound, what would it be worth?"
"The butcher's little boy sneered disgustedly."
"It wouldn't be worth a d—n," he said."
