Victor Finally "Got on to City Fellows"

"When I was up to Kay See the other day, I like to have had the life bucket out of me a couple of 'times," retorted Earl Blunt of Pontiac. "I was riding up from the union depot to a task, and when we went to turn out for another car nothing went wrong with our steering wheels. The lead swerved, switched sideways and turned bottom up. The driver crawled out and got a bunch of fellows, and they lifted the car off me and set it up straight. Well, pretty soon we whizzed out of the track again, hit a telephone pole, and turned wrong side up. Another bunch of fellows came and lifted the car off me, and I got in again. My neck was twisted, shoulder strained and my back skinned."
"Lucky here—last time it says I to the driver, 'I'm onto you city fellows. I'll pay you for the ride when we get to the hotel—if we ever do, but I'll be everlastingly dad-gummed if I'll pay all them fellows for lifting cars off of me!" says L.—Kansas City Star.

Ancient Idea of Life, Correct, Scientist Says

The ancient allegorical conception of the earth as the mother of life and the sun as the father, though pronounced by the ignorant as a superstition, is good, Dr. Alva Hilditch, curator of physical anthropology in the Smithsonian Institution, declared in his 45th public lecture on man's origin. Modern biological knowledge, virtually confirms the truth of what early civilized man guessed at, he said.
To refer the cause of the existence of man and other organic beings to accident or chance, is to take a superficial and unreasoning view of the question, the speaker asserted.
"Life is no accident," he added. "The whole process of natural evolution is something that always has been and still is inherent in the constitution of the earth, and has been brought about through chemistry, physics and dynamics resulting from this, in connection with stimuli from the sun and other influences upon the earth from the rest of the universe."—Washington Post.

A S.A.D. CASE

"I understand her husband died very suddenly."
"Yes," she told him. She did not want to give up her life this season, and he never asked a question."

After Many Years

After parting 34 years ago, Mr. George Frid and Miss Ann Hubbard were married recently at Sittingbourne, England. Mr. Frid left Baltimore, Kent, and emigrated to Canada in 1870. Miss Hubbard's friends objected to her going to Canada, and letters between the two subsequently ceased, while Mr. Frid married a Canadian woman. His wife died later, and last summer Mr. Frid revisited his old home, where he met his former sweetheart.

Penny Oddly Restored

A man in the mail of his plant tested a new steel macepunch by stamping with it his name on a penny, and the next day, in a moment of forgetfulness, paid the bill away for a purchase. Twenty years later his son, while in London, went into a shop for some light refreshment, and when he paid the bill received among the change the penny his father had stamped 20 years before.

Fly's Temperament

An Austrian scientist has been experimenting with flies with a view to lessening their number. He says the experiments proved conclusively that certain flies possess weak temperaments, others aggressive, while some are decidedly aggressive. The more aggressive and assertive possess a resistance to disease in direct ratio to their truculence.

Ostrich Dinner

A roast ostrich three feet long and weighing 90 pounds was among the dishes served at a dinner party given by some Australians in London recently. The ostrich was sent from Australia in a block of ice and was cooked on a spit before an open hearth.

Golden Rag-Picker

A laborer, giving evidence in a London police court, said: "I am at present a rag picker, and at this trade fortunate as to be made. I have earned as much as £60 ($200) a week."

STATION F. H. S.

the world. Washington is a city without commerce or manufacturing, a city of magnificent distances, wide avenues and broad streets, with all telegraph, electric and trolley wires underground.
The public buildings, such as the Capitol, White House, Congressional Library, Treasury, Bureau of Engraving Institute, Pan American Union, War Department Buildings, and many others are of never ending interest from both educational and architectural standpoint. In addition to these are the hundreds of monuments, statues, tablets, homes of former Presidents and Embassies. All of these are seen and many visited on the tour, as are also the historical points, Arlington National Cemetery, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Lee Mansion, and Mt. Vernon.
It is to see these many interesting things that the Senior Class of '25 are striving.

Girls' Game

The Farmington girls were defeated by Northville, 22-14. During the first half Farmington made more points than Northville but were unable to hold their lead.

Steele's basket-shooting kept Farmington in the race until the third period when Northville's star forward got away for a run of seven field baskets and as many foul goals.

Sub-Middlewood for Millard, Olsen for Pickett, Gans for Olsen. Field goals—Steele 4; Willard 1; Smith 9; Horan 1. Foul goals—Steele 2 in 3; Millard 2 in 4; Horan 3 in 8; Horan 1-2.

Referee—Raymer.

Farmington 16—Northville 13

The Farmington boys were forced to show their best form of the sechop to beat Northville 16 to 13. The local boys piled up a lead in the first half that Northville was unable to overcome although they made a brilliant comeback in the last half which netted them four baskets from the field and three from the foul line.

Farmington's offensive work, led by Spiller, was a bright spot of the game. Northville being compelled to make all their baskets except one from the center of the floor.

The scoring was led by Quinn who made 9 points and Graham with 5 points.

WOULD IMPROVE PLINT RIVER

"Transportation is the most serious problem facing the business man of today," Cornish Bailey of Washington, D. C., field secretary of the National Harbors and Rivers Congress told Flint Chamber of Commerce members at a recent luncheon. In conclusion he visualized the possible development of Flint river to the Saginaw river. "This may sound like a far fetched dream to you," he said, "but other countries, England, Belgium, Holland and Germany, have spent millions in developing just such rivers and the consequence is that these countries experienced a larger export trade than the United States, by far." He urged the Chamber of Commerce members to co-operate with the efforts of the National Harbors and Rivers Congress in bringing about the development of waterways of this country.

Real Test of Life

Success comes at the finish, not at the beginning of things. A completed task is the test of ability, of efficiency, of will power. How does the thing you start turn out? Do you leave it half done or do you finish it like a real victor?—Grit.
