The end of school days can get pretty emotional. My own emotions on the matter are strictly predictable. I wonder how I'm going to stand all this leisure for everyone else.

For the young, feelings are more changeable. A month ago, it was a matter of counting days until finals would be over for the older ones and looking forward to glorious freedom for the smaller members of the family.

Then came the day school was out. Graduating senior friends were quoted as saying: "You know, this is fine for a day or two, and then what a letdown!"

Our own sophomore (oops, junior) was bewailing the fact that one precious high school year was over, and there were only two left.

Our junior high graduate sadly turned in her band room key and wondered how the future could possibly be as great as the last three years.

But surely, I thought, our smallest would keep her undiluted joy over vacation.

Not so. "You know," she said after two free days. "I sort of wish I could go to school Monday."

I'm glad we have lots of camping and vacation plans. Otherwise, it could be a pretty long summer.

Soroptimists Install Officers

Soroptimist Clubs from Farmington, Redford, Livonia and Wayne will install new officers at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Meadowbrook Country Club.

New officers will be installed by Mrs. Ruth Reese, from the Royal Oak Club, who is the outgoing director of District III.

The incoming director, Mrs. Frances Moore of Livonia, will also be on hand.

District III includes the 23 clubs in Michigan. Soroptimists in the Detroit area will meet their international president, Gannet Hazel-ius, Rev. of Sweden, in the Ballroom of Northland Inn on June 29. Also present will be Mrs. Phyllis Braund of Canada, vice president of the Soroptimist Federation of the Americas.

Both women will be on their way to the 21st biennial convention of Soroptimist Clubs in St. Louis Mo., from July 5 to 10. Shirley Hatfield and Mrs. Nadine Cardwell from Farmington plan to attend the St. Louis convention.

Old Books Are Sought

Drop-off boxes for books to be donated to the Oakland Branch of the American Association of University Women's fall book sale have now been placed in Harvard Row at 11 Mile and Lahser, in Southfield.

The shopping center has also been selected again as the site of the annual October sale: one of the largest sales of used books to regularly come into the area.

"All sizes and shapes of books are welcome, from paperbacks to encyclopedias," said Mrs. Richard J. Mosner, of Royal Oak, who is in charge of collections. Subjects may range from history to humor, from racing to religion, from adventure on the high seas to points of parliamentary procedure, from science to sex.

As in past years, the call for used books goes out in the spring, when women are making room for summer flowers, and it also gives club members the whole summer for collecting, sorting and classifying donations for the sale.

Drop-off boxes may also be found at Detroit Edison offices, 321 Williams, in Royal Oak and 22751 Woodward in Ferndale; and the Wayne Oakland Bank, 150 N. Main, in Clawson.

Arrangements to have books picked up in the Southfield and Lathrup area may be made with Mrs. George T. Hunter, by calling 247-2574.

Spotlight on Women

Fashion Designer Opens Farmington Town Hall

A noted fashion designer, a diplomat's wife, a well-known author, and an Alaskan photographer will give variety to Farmington Town Hall series this fall and winter.

They are designer Vera Maxwell, Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, Peter Maas, author of "The Valachi Papers," and Don Cooper, who has frequently appeared on the George Perrot Show.

The Town Hall lectures, to be sponsored for the fourth year by the Soroptimist Club of Farmington, will be held in the Northland Theater. All begin at 11 a.m. Thursdays, and the season ticket price is $10.

THE SERIES will open Oct. 15 with Miss Maxwell, who will show some of her classic creations over the last 40 years. She will ask members of the audience to try to guess the year.

Some of her contributions to fashion have been the leotard, the wrap-around blouse, the fringe and bead Indian influence and the long tweed evening coat.

Robin Chandler Duke will appear Nov. 19. A knowledgeable and vivid personality, Mrs. Duke was before her marriage to a television panelist, a Wall Street broker and a public relations executive.

Married to Ambassador Duke while he was serving as White House chief of protocol in the Kennedy Administration, she organized and served as first chairman of the Blair House Fine Arts Committee for the preservation and restoration of the president's guest-house.

Since then she has been hostess to Washington dignitaries and assisted her husband in his diplomatic duties in Madrid, Copenhagen and El Salvador.

VERA MAXWELL

MRS. ANGIER BIDDLE DUKE

PETER MAAS

Mrs. Duke has met some of the leading personalities of our time.

PETER MAAS, author of "The Valachi Papers," will speak March 18, 1971. His book is the first factual inside account of life in the Mafia.

Maas has also done an in-depth interview with the late Robert F. Kennedy upon his appointment as attorney general, an analysis of how John Lindsay waged his campaign for mayor of New York City in 1965, and the expose of columnist Ignor Cassini as an agent for Dominican dictator Trujillo.

Maas will talk about how organized crime affects people's lives.

COOPER WILL appear before the Town Hall audience April 15. Cooper has filmed his experience in the homeland of the Alaskan Indians.

When Cooper went north, he expected to rub elbows with Eskimos and polar bears. After 12 years in Alaska, he says he still hasn't seen a polar bear and didn't see an Eskimo until last fall.

Soroptimist Club sponsors said season tickets may be ordered from any member or by mailing a check for $10 to Box 504, Farmington. Tickets may also be obtained at the Farmington Community Center.

Celebrity luncheons will follow each lecture in Glen Oaks Golf and Country Club, 39500 W. 13 Mile, Farmington.

New Head Announces Program

Mrs. Eleanor Driver of Birmingham has been appointed associate director of the Continuum Center at Oakland University.

She will take over the post formerly held by Dr. Gerald Self, who will continue to assist the center as a consulting psychologist.

Mrs. Driver has announced that the center will offer a special program for women. Investigation in identity during the summer for the first time.

The program will run for three hours daily from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., on July 16 at Meadow Brook Clubhouse on the Oakland campus.

It helps women to evaluate themselves and their skills through group encounters as well as educational and vocational testing.

MSU Prof Discusses Food For Rotary

Dr. Don Cederquist, professor and head of the Michigan State University Department of food and nutrition, will speak to the Plymouth Rotary Club at 12 noon, Tuesday, June 19, in the Mayflower Meeting House.

Dr. Cederquist, a member of the MSU faculty for 26 years, has written numerous articles on research in foods and nutrition.

She is a member and past president of the home economics honorary, Omicron Chi Phi. Other memberships include American Institute of Nutrition, the American Home Economics Association and the American Chemical Society.

She received her bachelor of science and masters degrees from Iowa State College and her doctorate from the University of Wisconsin.

Pow Wow Planned For Indian Students

Children in this area will have an opportunity to learn more about Indians, and the Indians will be able to go to college, as the result of a powwow to be held this weekend.

The affair will be given Saturday, June 20, and Sunday, June 21, from 2 until 7 p.m. at Willowbrook Stables, corner of 10 Mile and Beck, Novi.

It is sponsored by the North Western Indian Association of Detroit, and proceeds will be used for scholarships for Indian students.

Indians from Detroit and Michigan will be joined by representatives from California, New Mexico, Arizona, Minnesota and Canada in performing their native dances. They will wear ceremonial costumes.

There will also be an exhibit of Indian pottery and crafts. Everyone is invited to attend. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children.

The powwow is co-sponsored by the Novi Branch of the Elmer Senior High School Park in charge of arrangements.

Plan Bake Sale

Nibble Nook, P.O. 3, Club is planning a coffee and bake sale Saturday, June 27 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in St. Robert Catholic Church Hall, W. Chicago and Ingles. Redford Township.

The group meets every Tuesday evening in St. Robert School.

FOR THE INDIANS — Running Fawn and Running Deer, better known as Linda Reeves and her mother, Mrs. Glenna Reeves of Livonia, show some of the boxes of clothing and equipment the Indian Princesses of the Livonia Family Y collected for needy Indians in northern Michigan.

Princesses Aid Indians

Appropriately enough, the Indian Maidens of the Livonia Family Y have made a sizable contribution to the welfare of the Indians living in Michigan.

The recently-completed project sent a gargantuan of used clothing and other supplies to reservations in the northern part of the state.

Leader of the collection work was Mrs. Glenna Reeves, 14255 Norman, Livonia, who attends the mother-and-daughter Indian Maidens group at the Y with her small daughter, Linda.

MRS. REEVES read a newspaper story about the work of Edward Oprinski, Detroit who makes regular trips to the areas where needy Indian families live.

She thought it would be a suitable project for the Maidens, so the collection was begun in the Reeves garage. Many local families brought contributions, and Mrs. Diane McGraw and her daughter, Peggy, helped with the sorting.

"THE THINGS we collected filled our two-car garage,"

Partners Will Address PWB

The Rev. D.P. Nelson of St. Michael Lutheran Church in Wayne will speak on "Three Is a Crowd" at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 1, in Room 136 of John Glenn High School.

Mrs. Reeves said later. "When they came to get it there were three pickup trucks and two trailers filled."

The activity was a worthwhile one for the little girls who like to wear Indian dresses, Mrs. Reeves concluded.

"I think it's good for them to realize how poor the Indians are and that they can do something to help," she said.

July at the bi-monthly meetings of the Wayne-Westland Chapter of the Parents Without Partners.

At the July meeting, the Rev. R. Sayers will speak on "Mark Traditions Under Attack."
