ONLY THE HALF OF IT

The word 'telephone' originated from the Greek words 'tele,' meaning from afar, and 'phone,' meaning sound. The two words were thus combined into the one word 'telephos,' an instrument for conveying sound between distant points. When you hear the word 'telephone,' therefore, reduced to just plain 'phone,' only half the story is told.

A WELL PAYING INVESTMENT

As a general rule, the higher the expected rate of return on an investment the greater is the risk. To this rule the store lighting investment is a brilliant exception, for the risk is practically nothing, while the return is usually high enough to pay back the investment in a short time.

You cannot lose on a store lighting investment. Experience has shown time and again that raising the standard of illumination infallibly results in increased business and a higher ratio of profit.

Come in and talk with us about your store lighting. It will be well worth your while to do so.
