OF NEW LAW

Broad changes in the state laws governing the operating of motor vehicles became effective Friday when the Wells-Horton-Butler-Jewell bill was transmitted to the department of state bearing the governor's signature.

For the first time a positive dimming law is on the statute books. It stipulates that drivers shall dim not less than 600 feet of an approaching car, unless lights are of a non-glaring variety.

Cut-outs and exhaust whistles hereafter are banned absolutely. The law states specifically that cut-outs are not permitted.

The general passenger car law, relative to lights, two headlights in front and one tail light—is unchanged, but a new clause was added making it mandatory for drivers to have the required number of lights functioning. Failure to have a vehicle properly lighted can now be termed reckless driving, and a driver's license may be suspended for violation.

A radical change in the lighting system for busses and trucks is prescribed. Trucks weighing more than two tons and passenger busses must have, in addition to the regular lighting equipment, three green lights in front, at the top of the windshield, and three green lights at the point of greatest visibility in the rear. The idea of this section is to give passenger car drivers warning when approaching a large commercial vehicle. Owners, as well as operators, of commercial vehicles, are held liable.

The new law provides distinctive license plates for commercial vehicles. Inasmuch as plates have already been issued for 1925 this section will not be enforced until 1926.

Commercial vehicles, including passenger carriers, must be equipped with speedometers, so state inspectors may check their speed.

Dealers no longer are required to transfer license plates when a used car is taken in. The transfer will now be direct to the purchaser of the car.

Stiff penalties for violations of any section of the act are prescribed. First offenders are subject to a $25 fine and 10 days imprisonment; second offense, $50 and 30 days; third offense $100 and 60 days.

According to the secretary of state, immediate steps to enforce the new statute are to be taken.

In addition to the general changes effective today the Young Drunken Driver bill has been operative for several days past and several license suspensions have been made under its provisions. It stipulates that driving while intoxicated is a misdemeanor punishable by comparatively heavy penalties. In addition, the driver is subject to suspension of his license for 90 days for a first offense and for one year for a subsequent offense.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

1. In a permanent home at less than cash value on very easy terms.
2. In securing absolutely free rent in a fine home for three years.
3. Or in an investment with perfectly sound security paying 15 per cent interest?

A very unusual combination of circumstances make it possible for these unique offers. These offers are possible only on first ten houses. Five are now under contract, several others pending. Investigate at once. See me personally.

My Goodness What a Big Change in This Old Home!

When the owner decided to build a sleeping porch and a spacious sun parlor, he had no idea how much beauty, comfort, convenience and value he would add to this old home. To his amazement he had changed the plain, old fashioned home into an up-to-date, beautiful village home.

Cut out, in outline, the picture below which shows the part that was added in remodeling; lay it on the large picture in the correct position and see the difference.

Come in and look over our book "Old Homes Made New." It will suggest changes and improvements that you can economically make to your home; or if you prefer we'll bring the book over to your house any time.
