WHY THROW IT AWAY

Electric light is cheap—the cheapest thing we buy, of modern life's necessities. And it is the thing we most commonly waste—in home, in store, in factory. We waste it thoughtlessly, lavishly, expensively.

Most homes, many factories, countless stores are ill-lighted, with results that are highly disadvantageous: strained vision; decreased production; loss of business.

Poor lighting is not always caused by shortage of lamps or candlepower. In many cases from 20 to 40 per cent more light could be obtained without increasing the light bill from the present equipment—if only the lamps were kept clean.

Lamps should be dusted every day; wiped with a clean cloth every week; washed with soap and water every month.
